NOTICE!

Next Sunday

June 30th has been appointed as a day of national prayer and humiliation before God with reference to the war. We plead most earnestly with the people of Napanee to co-operate in this great national intercession, and to take the fullest opportunity of meeting before God on the day appointed. The appointing of such a day constitutes a challenge to the people of Canada to make a public recognition of that dependance upon God for our national welfare, without which we may not expect His blessing. Without the blessing neither men, money, nor ammunitions will avail. It is a critical time for the Empire. Upon the issue of the next few weeks may hang the maintenance and preservation of all that is dearest and best to us in life. It is also a critical time for all of us, and here, in the observance of this day, is our opportunity in penitence and prayer, to get nearer to the source of true strength. We affectionately urge all to whom these words may come, that they let nothing stand in the way of attendance at the church services of next Sunday, both morning and evening, so that we may be a united people in pleading with God for the cause in which we believe, and for the brave men who are defending it with their lives.

DAY OF SUPPLICATION

In every village, town and country wherever there is a Catholic church and pastor of such, prayer, humble service and sacrifice will be offered up in union of the Holy Father who has appointed next Saturday, June 29th, the feast of St. Peter and St. Paul, a day of universal prayer as the surest means to hasten the advent of blessed peace and harmony the world so longs for and is unable to give. In accordance with this decree of the Holy Father, Pope Benedict XV. public service will be held in St. Patrick's church at 8 a. m. next Saturday morning, to conclude with the rosary and benediction at 7 p.m.

Actuated by the same pious desire as His Holiness and inspired by the same true reliance in the divine power and mercy of God and prompted as well by its absolute necessity His Majesty, King George, has by Royal Proclamation appointed next Sunday as a day of national humiliation and prayer.

The motives of confidence and faith in God's divine power to aid us in this crisis, that has moved the hearts of the highest spiritual and temporal powers on earth to appeal for our humble and prayerful co-operation, should awaken in the hearts of all renewed efforts to comply most earnestly with those truly noble appeals to the best that is in man.

The spirit of unrest, the painful anxiety manifest all about us, man's helplessness in the face of this ter-

human passions to work out their own punishment.

He, too, has committed the management of the world to mankind and men, puffed up with pride and natural progress, has forgotten the creator, flouted the moral law, gone after other idols, and is now reaping a bitter harvest of misdeeds. God alone can lead his children out of this land of bondage to the land of true peace, but before that time a full measure of retribution has to be made. He must be propitiated. Like the prodigal, the world must go back to its father in the acknowledgement of sin and in gratitude and petition for pardon before they can receive the true enjoyment of the good things of life. Most heartily then do we all join in humble supplication and universal sacrifice that the home coming may be nearer than we think.—Com.

AFTER TEACHING IN THE NAPANEE
SCHOOLS FOR OVER 46 YEARS!

On Friday afternoon last, just before the close of school for the summer vacation, the School Board, Town Council, the teaching staff and the pupils of the school assembled the halls of the school to bid farewell to Miss Mary Fraser, who has been a popular and faithful teacher in the Napanee Public Schools over 46 years. The farewell was held in the hall with the pupils the school occupying the stairway either side, and the school board town representatives and visitors occupying the central hall. The proceedings were opened by the children singing "The Maple Leaf." Mr. Pine Woods, who occupied the chair called Miss Fraser to take a seat at the table and in a few words plained the object of the gathering. Mr. W. F. Hall, secretary-treasurer of the school board, and who for a number of years a member of the board, read an address to Miss Fraser from the Board of Education and presented her with a cheque for 3 months salary from the Board. Mr. J. E. Robinson, Mayor, on behalf of the town council expressed satisfaction of the citizens of town in being able to in a measure express to Miss Fraser the deep regard of all the scholars who have passed through her hands and the regret at losing the services of so true and conscientious a teacher. Mr. A. Grange, town clerk, read the address from the town council. Miss Elsie Parks, in behalf of the teaching staff of the Public Schools, presented her with a gold chain and Miss Fraser a short address and Miss Fraser presented her with a gold chain. Two of Miss Fraser's pupils, also on behalf of her represented her with an address accompanied by an umbrella and box of candy. Rev. C. W. Demille plied on behalf of Miss Fraser. Farewell was brought to a close the children singing "O Canada" the National Anthem.

FALL WHEAT SEED

ANNOUNCEMENT.

In view of the partial failure of the Fall Wheat crop in this Province
this year, it will be necessary for farmers to make early arrangements for the supply of seed, which they will need for fall sowing. Under these circumstances farmers who have on hand quantities of wheat suitable for fall seeding are urged to conserve them for this purpose. If there is no demand locally, the information should be supplied to this Department, or to the local office of this Department in your County, so that every effort may be made to have an equitable and satisfactory distribution. The need for foodstuffs justifies a large acreage of Fall Wheat in this Province again this year, and the co-operation of the farmers in the mobilization and distribution of the available seed supplies is invited.

Some More About Weeds

Editor, The Express,
 Napanee, Ont.

Dear Sir:—I have read with considerable interest the two letters in recent issues of your paper signed "ratepayer". I was glad to see these articles in your paper because the matter was one which had pressed itself upon my attentions many times in the last few years and I am in hearty sympathy with ratepayer's wish to find a remedy for this state of affairs and to make Napanee streets compare more favorably than they do with the character of her residences and shops and her wealth of trees. The Council are making a fine start towards the improvement of her roadway and I think are making a fine showing for the money. I think our system of sewerage for a town of the size and wealth of Napanee is quite up-to-date. With the latter part of ratepayer's letter I am not so much in harmony, not so much inclined to agree with his charge of incompetence on the part of somebody.

The town council of Napanee is a body of business men selected by the ratepayers from those who express a willingness to conduct the business of the town practically without remuneration. They are all business men with their business to attend to and a living to make. The time they have to give to this work, especially the chairmen of the more important committees is very considerable. They have a certain amount of money to spend for which we are taxed and against which we protest every time the collector comes around.

A great part of this goes to pay certain fixed charges, interest, coun-

TENDERS FOR COAL

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Coal for the Dominion Buildings," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon, on Thursday, June 27, 1918, for the supply of coal for the Public Buildings throughout the Dominion.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained at this office and from the caretakers of the different Dominion Buildings. Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Minister of Public Works, equal to 10 p. c. of the amount of the tender.

R. C. DESROCHERS,

Department of Public Works, Secretary.

WANTED—Comfortable home for an old lady. One with a bedroom downstairs preferred. Write stating particulars to HAROLD ANDERSON. 30a-p ty rates, schools, etc., and the money which they have to spend in the end dwindles down to a pretty small point. How to spend that to the best advantage is a problem, especially with the roadway of the streets in such a condition as those of Napanee are. It would tax the ingenuity even of ratepayer, to spend it to the best advantage and I doubt if he would find much at his disposal for the payment of expert help to keep the sides of the streets as they should be.

Now I have a suggestion to make to ratepayer and other citizens of Napanee who may be interested in the appearance of its streets. I have myself a very large street frontage in Napanee which I keep clear of weeds and grass and sticks and stones by my own work nights and mornings. Ratepayer has about a similar frontage but he keeps it clean. Why should not every citizen of Napanee do the same? I believe that a general appeal to them would meet with a generous response. Now what I propose is that a general meeting of the citizens of Napanee be called for the purpose of forming a street improvement association. That ratepayer who is a man of means, of some leisure, of public spirit and taste state the purpose of the meeting and that a society be formed which shall by example and by personal influence and in any other way educate the public and get their assistance in carrying out a scheme whereby each householder shall undertake to keep his own premises in order and if there are a few who will not assist, a small grant from the council placed in the hands of this association would work wonders. To me this scheme seems to be a practical one and one which will secure the end desired.

Austrians in Full Retreat Before Italians.

Enemy Losses Are Appalling,
Gen. Diaz and More Than 40
Prisoners Have Been Captured
and Victorious Armies Crossed Piave In Pursuit of Enemy.

LONDON, June 25.—The defeat of the Austrian armies on the west bank of the Piave river is complete. Admission is made by the Austrian War Office that the troops of Emperor Charles have been forced to evacuate the Montello plateau, which they had hoped to press to the way and gain the Venetian plain and "some sectors" of the position
they attained last week on the bank of the river between the plateau and the point where the stream empties
into the Adriatic.

Bad weather and the rising of the Piave under the heavy rainfalls assigned as the reasons for the withdrawal of the Austrians, but the Austrian War Office asserts that it is the impetuous attacks of the Italians that brought about the failure of the operation which was started with intention of crushing the army of Gen. Diaz and forcing the Italians like the Russians, to accept a truce-allied peace.

All along the river the Italians have pressed back the invaders
their territory until only small units remain on the western bank, across the stream King Victor Emanuel's men are keeping well the heels of the retreating enemy who is fleeing in confusion. The cavalry has been thrown into fighting and is sorely harassing
the enemy, while machine guns from ground and from aircraft are winning havoc among the fleeing Austrian columns. The losses to the enemy are described as enormous, both men killed, wounded or made prisoner. An official statement from the Italian Embassy in Washington asserts that the Austrians have lost 40,000 men in prisoners.

Most of the few bridges that had not been carried away by the fire had been shot to pieces, but according to Rome advices, the river subsidized and could be easily forwarded otherwise not one of the invaders would have been able to return the east bank. So hurried was the retrograde movement of the Italians at some points that they did not take time even to attempt to destroy their guns and stores, great quantities of which are now in Italian hands.

As yet there has been no sign of the enemy purposes again to retake an early date another offensive
the mountain region, notwithstanding the fact that reports emanate from Switzerland have said that the Italians were bringing up large reinforcements and great quantities of munitions along the front behind the Swiss border to the upper reaches of the Piave.

After recapturing the Montello
from the Austrians, according to news received in London yesterday afternoon, the Italians began mal-ling bridgeheads at Palze and Nervet.
The Italians met with little resistance.

The retreating Austrians crossed the Piave by the only bridge remaining to them north of Zenson. On the enemy troops were forced to wade
across the stream.

AUSTRIA FACES CRISIS.

Famine Is Spreading and Revolution
Threatens Nation.

LONDON, June 25.—The military situation in Austria is becoming of secondary importance, according to latest information reaching the Swiss border, being overshadowed by the grave internal disorders, strikes and conflicts between civilians and military. The Daily Express Geneva correspondent says these reports state that famine has begun to spread rapidly. Not only have the big towns suddenly reduced their bread allowance from 180 to 90 grammes, but the railway transport has reached a crisis resembling the situation in Russia just before the outbreak of the revolution. A commercial traveller who arrived direct from Vienna, said that the Austrian Empire was on the brink of a revolution. Resentment and hatred against the Germans is spreading, especially in Hungary. The revolutionary movement is not directly against the Hapsburgs,
but the regime they represent.
Events will happen shortly which may turn the face of the war in favor of the Allies. In spite of every precaution of the military authorities
discontent has penetrated the army.
What dominates the whole situation is hunger. There is no sign of amelioration, in spite of Germany's promise to send several thousand tons of grain. It is evident that even the reduced daily bread ration can only be maintained if Germany helps. In Berlin and Vienna the opinion is unanimous that the bread conflict has seriously endangered the prospects of the strengthened German-Austrian alliance. Germany cannot allow these feelings to dominate her governing classes as it is a matter of life and death for Germany that Austria should not be allowed to throw up the sponge at the present stage of the war. German authorities are determined to prevent an Austrian revolution by any means at their command because they are afraid of a revolution in Vienna. They would much prefer serious trouble in Germany where they can cope with it
by the usual iron methods.

TROOPSHIP TORPEDOED.

It Met Submarine When Returning
From Europe.

WASHINGTON, June 25. — German submarines operating on this side of the Atlantic Ocean have sunk their first troopship. The Navy Department announced yesterday that a British transport, under charter by the American Government and bound to this country, had been destroyed
June 18, some 700 miles east of the Delaware Capes, and that 67 members of the crew are missing. There were no troops aboard.

The troopship apparently was not under convoy. The submarine was not seen until a torpedo had struck the ship. Afterwards the submarine rose to the surface and fired 19 shells into the sinking vessel. When the steamer settled the crew took to the boats, the occupants of four of which, numbering 81 men, have been landed. Three boats are missing, and a search is being made for them.

The fact that the British vessel was sunk far off the coast led officials to believe that she either had encountered a homebound submarine that had been operating in American waters, or else one that was bound here for further raids on shipping.
The fact that the sea-wolves which first appeared off the coast last month had not been heard from since June 14 caused most officers to hold to the first theory.

ALLIES POSSESS PLAN

Grand Offensive Will be Launched Later.

No Nation Will Undertake to Attack
the foe on Its Own Account and for That Reason Gen. Diaz Will Hold His Victorious Armies Back
Until the Right Moment Arrives.

LONDON, June 25. — Optimistic
suggestions indulged in by some correspondents and military writers that, following the failure of the Austrian offensive and the giving of the initiative to the Italians, Gen.
Diaz was likely to launch an offensive in his turn, were deprecated by an Italian military authority. Describing the situation, he said: "Recent statements made with regard to the comparative ease with which the Italians have been able to withstand the Austrian attack and exaggerating
the expectations are unwise and show inability to grasp the full meaning of the situation and the enormous struggle. Austria had six months' absolute rest to prepare and train her armies for a supreme effort.
Practically all her troops were on the Italian front, as since Russia's collapse and the end of the Roumanian campaign she has not been engaged elsewhere. Therefore, all her resources, including the fresh levies of young men of Austria-Hungary,
which counts a population of 56-000,000, were arrayed against those of Italy, with a population of 36,000,000. This disproportion of man-power against Italy has been accumulating for two years. Field Marshal Conrad was correct in his proclamation on the eve of the offensive that the army of the Dual Monarchy never had such an apparent easy chance of victory, based upon numbers, superiority of men and material and dangerous nature of the front was such that, while attacking
in the northern and middle sections with a proportionately small number of troops the enemy could concentrate an enormous preponderance against the Duke D'Aosta's Third Italian army in an attempt to force the Piave. If he could throw the Italians back from the Piave Venice would be forced to take refuge in Brindisi. The abandonment of the Piave and the uncovering of Venice would have meant a retreat of four or five hundred miles on the sea front. No undue or outlandish expectations ought to be held out from the great success of the Italian army in holding doggedly to the Piave instead of obliging the enemy by retreating to the line of the Po. The Italians have done something more than a mere display of their mettle
and wiping out the stain of Capor-etta. They have inflicted a heavy defeat on a greatly superior army.
They have struck a moral blow for all the Allies. They have inspired general confidence at the moment when it was needed. But until the times comes for all the Allies, Italians as well as British, French, Americans, and who knows but Japanese and Russians, also to undertake a general offensive, it would be a fundamental mistake to expect the Italians to launch blindly into an offensive of their own.

a search is being made for them. The fact that the British vessel was sunk far off the coast led officials to believe that she either had encountered a homebound submarine that had been operating in American waters, or else one that was bound here for further raids on shipping. The fact that the sea-wolves which first appeared off the coast last month had not been heard from since June 14 caused most officers to hold to the first theory.

The last sinkings reported off the coast occurred some 90 miles east of the Virginia Capes, and it was argued that in the four days elapsing before the British transport was sent down the submarine would have had ample time to reach the position where the troopship was sunk.

The vessel destroyed was said to have been the former Russian steamer Dwinsk.

DRAFT LAW ENLARGED.

Canadians In United States Must Join Colors.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Treaties between the United States and Great Britain for reciprocal operation of army draft laws to their citizens, including Canadians, were ratified late yesterday by the Senate without a dissenting vote.

British subjects in the United States between 20 and 44 years of age—the British draft ages—and American citizens in the British Empire between the ages of 21 and 31, would be subject to draft under the treaties, but they would be given the option of returning to their own countries for service under their own flag.

It is estimated that some 54,000 American citizens in the British Empire, including 36,000 in Canada, and 310,000 British subjects in the United States, including 60,000 Canadians, will be affected by the treaties. A new clause inserted in the treaty provides that citizens of signatory nations exempt from the draft at home, such as the Irish and Australians, shall not be subject to draft in the country of their foreign residence.

Prices In Turkey.

PARIS, June 25.—News from Constantinople just to hand reveals the fact that the Turks, tired of war, show very little inclination to take Germany's advice to watch events in Mesopotamia. The same letters give examples of the extremely high cost of living there. Butter sells at $7 a pound, soap $5 a pound, the cheapest hat for a woman costs $100, and a pair of boots fetches $80. The famous Orient Club at Pera is much frequented. There German counts and Austrian barons are continually playing cards with one-time dishonest Turks, who now are showing all their wealth, most of which is gold. The Turks openly admit they are tired of war, now that their one great enemy, Russia, is out. The few rich are contented to live on their spoils, while the less fortunate grumble at the effects of a war that has ruined them.

German Crime Wave.

AMSTERDAM, June 25.—The mounting crime wave in Germany continues a live subject of discussion. The latest reported crime is a hand-grenade attack on an express train from Berlin to Hamburg, the train-wreckers escaping. In the course of a debate in the Prussian House National Liberal Representative Fuerbringer said: "The universal insecurity is now so great that overcoats of representatives disappear even from the coat-room of the Prussian House. In hotels, too, one is robbed. Once my shoes were stolen, so I was nearly forced to come barefoot to the session."

Anti-Jewish Outbreaks In Galicia.

THE HAGUE, June 25.—A Frankfurt telegram from Lemburg says that disturbances having a anti-Semitic character have occurred during the last few days at Lemburg and other small towns in East Galicia. They have led to great excesses. Jewish organizations in self-defence have taken action to put an end to these disturbances.

A Wretched Army.

The history of the Russian army since May-June, 1917, is a history of increasing deterioration. It suggests something fatal. Lack of food, lack of munitions, lack of management, lack of transportation facilities—these defects only added to the inherent destructive forces. The Galician drive, headed by Kerensky, in June, was the last attempt to attain the impossible. The drive was a complete failure. The attack of the Liberal press on the army for its humiliating retreat, the epithets "cowards," "traitors," "rascals," applied to the soldiers by the over-zealous patriots, only increased the hatred of the army toward war partisans. Under such conditions no Government favoring a war policy could meet with success. Anything that the Provisional Government did was wrong. Anything that had even a flavor of "peace" was right. Any measure that tried to stem the current of popular sentiment was doomed to failure. Any measure, including the overthrow of the Government—if it only promised cessation of war—commanded a hearty support. —Moissaye J. Olgin in Asia.

CATTLE MARKETS.

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, June 25.—Prices for all classes of cattle on the Union Stock Yards Market declined from 25c to 50c yesterday, the biggest decline being on the butcher cows and medium butcher cattle. There was a steady inquiry for the better class of cattle showing weight and quality, and more of this class would have found ready sale if they had been on the market.

There was a comparatively light run of sheep and lambs, 562 all told, and the market, while closing strong and probably 25c higher, closed steady with last week. Choice light sheep sold at from 13½c to 14½c; heavy fat sheep and bucks at 11½c to 13c; spring lambs, choice, 20c to 21c, and medium at 16c to 19c.

With 1800 hogs on the market the price held steady around 18c, fed and watered; 18¼c weighed off, and 17¼c f.o.b.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, June 24.—Receipts, 37,000. A few hogs early low, general market on good hogs steady to 5c higher, except on common packing, which were hard to move. Bulk of sales, $16.15 to $16.35; butchers, $16.15 to $16.50; packing, $15.65 to $16.15; light, $16.45; roughs, $15.25 to $15.50; pigs, good and choice, $16.25 to $16.50.

Cattle—Receipts, 12,000. Strong and unevenly higher on all classes of killing cattle except common, light yearling steers and bologna bulls, which sold steady; calf and stocker market steady; beef cattle, good, choice and prime, $16.25 to $18; common and medium, $11.75 to $16.25; butcher stock cows and heifers, $7.75 to $13; canners and cutters, $6.75 to $17.75; stockers and feeders, good, choice and fancy selected, $10.75 to $13.25; inferior, common and medium, $8.25 to $10.75; veal calves, good and choice, $12.50 to $16.25.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

East Buffalo, June 24.—Cattle—Receipts, 5000. Easier; prime steers, $17.50 to $17.75; shipping steers, $17 to $17.25; butchers, $12 to $16.50; yearlings, $13.50 to $14.75; heifers, $10 to $14.25; cows, $6 to $12.50; bulls, $7.50 to $10.50; fresh cows and springers, steady, $60 to $145. Calves—Receipts, 2200. Steady; $7 to $18.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 6400. Steady to strong; heavy, $17.25 to $17.40; mixed and yorkers, $17.40 to $17.50; light yorkers, $17.75 to $17.90; pigs, $17.75 to $18; roughs, $15 to $15.25; stags, $11 to $13.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 1400. Slow and easy; spring lambs, $18 to $20; yearlings, $13 to $17; wethers, $13.50 to $14; ewes, $6 to $12.50; mixed sheep, $12.50 to $13.

Chinese Funeral.

TORONTO, June 25.—Following out Chinese custom of burial, Harry Suey, restaurant-keeper, was buried in Mount Pleasant Cemetery Saturday afternoon. The funeral cost two thousand dollars. A brass band took part in the proceedings, which was attended by 250 Chinese. Suey was 38 years of age, and had been ill for some time. He is survived by his widow and one brother here in Toronto.

Socialist manifestations took place in Vienna yesterday.

Air Raid Warnings.

In the French cities warning of German air raiders is given by sirens of different construction, some electric, others worked by compressed air or steam. The sound of these sirens is so powerful and penetrating that it can be heard for miles even under unfavorable conditions. Lookouts are maintained at elevated points and day and night close watch is kept upon the horizon line in the direction toward the enemy.

Paris itself, however, has been almost immune from aerial attack. To cross the anti-aircraft guns and to elude the patrolling airplanes is practically an impossibility since the retirement of the enemy.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Military Service Act, 1917.

Men 19 and 20 Years of Age.
Harvest Leave.

Leave of Absence on Ground of Extreme Hardship.
Procedure to obtain Leave of Absence.

Men Nineteen and Twenty Years of Age.

It has come to the attention of the Government that there is a widespread impression that young men of nineteen years, and those who became twenty since October 13, 1917, as well as those who may become nineteen from time to time and who have been or will be called upon to register under the Military Service Act, are to be immediately called to the colours.

This impression is quite incorrect. No date has yet been fixed for calling upon such men to so report for duty, nor has the question been brought before the Cabinet for decision. In view of the need of labour on the farm, it is most unlikely that consideration will be given to the matter until after the harvest is over, although of course the Government's action must be determined primarily by the military situation.

There is no further obligation incumbent upon young men of the ages above mentioned who have registered or who do so hereafter, until they receive notice from the Registrars.

Harvest Leave.

Some enquiries have been received as to the possibility of granting harvest leave to such troops as may be in the country at that time. No definite assurance can be given on this point as advantage must be taken of ships as they become available. On the other hand, harvest leave will be given if at all possible.

Leave of Absence on Grounds of Extreme Hardship.

It is desired that the Regulations respecting leave of absence in cases of hardship should be widely known and fully understood. Such leave will be granted in two cases:— (a) where extreme hardship arises by reason of the fact that the man concerned is either the only son capable of earning a livelihood, of a father killed or disabled on service or presently in service overseas, or in training for such service, or under treatment after returning from overseas; or the only remaining of two or more brothers capable of earning a livelihood (the other brother or brothers having been killed or disabled on service, or being presently in service overseas, or in training for overseas or under treatment after his or their return from overseas); brothers married before 4th August, 1914, living in separate establishments and having a child or children not to be counted, in determining the fact that the man is the "only" remaining son or brother; (b) where extreme hardship arises by reason of exceptional circumstances such as the fact that the man concerned is the sole support of a widowed mother, an invalid father or other helpless dependents.

It is to be noted that in all these cases the governing factor is not hardship, loss or suffering to the individual concerned, but to others, that is. members of his family or those depending upon him.

Procedure to obtain leave of absence.

A simple system for dealing with these cases has been adopted. Forms of application have been supplied to every Depot Battalion and an officer of each battalion has been detailed whose duty it is to give them immediate attention. The man concerned should on reporting to his unit state that he desires to apply

Dear Miss Fraser:—

Having learned that you are about to retire from the teaching staff of the Napanee Public School, we feel that we cannot let this closing day pass without a few words of farewell to you, our teacher for the past year.

While we are, no doubt, looking forward with pleasure to our summer holidays, we all feel sincere regret, that you will not be here to greet us, in your own kind way this coming Fall.

We ask you to accept this little gift, from your girls and boys, knowing, that in spite of our many mistakes and faults, we truly appreciate your efforts in our behalf, and shall long remember the interest you have shown in our welfare.

In conclusion we wish you many happy, peaceful hours, in the coming leisure days you have so well earned. Signed in behalf of the girls and boys of Junior 3rd room.

Miss Fraser, Ladies and Gentleman,
Boys and Girls:—

I am quite sure this is one of the proudest moments of my life. As the representative of the Municipal Council of the Town of Napanee, (and through that body I represent the entire population of Napanee,) I stand before you to do honor to Miss Fraser.

The scene before me, reminds me of a time when I was only thirteen years old and I stood with many other children on the campus of the old High School in another town to do honor to one who had been teaching for thirty-one years, and I remember what a wonderful thing the people of that town considered the occasion.

How much greater this occasion is! As I look back with the knowledge, I now have, I realize that the teacher who was the recipient of the honors of that day, had not the splendid record to leave that Miss Fraser has. Miss Fraser's firm but kind discipline, her wise and wholesome teaching of the subjects assigned, and her training and guidance of the hundreds of pupils that have passed through her hands in the highest type of precept and practice, must indeed have had a wonderful radiating influence on our citizens for good. As a stone cast in a lake spreads its disturbance from shore to shore, so her influence must have radiated for good throughout the whole community. It will be hard for the School Board to fill her vised that the Board of Education were arranging a public function to which an appreciation of your long and faithful service would be conveyed to you and the Council having been also invited to attend to honor you as they could.

The Council did decide that they would be pleased to be present in a body at this gathering and convey to you on behalf of the citizens of Napanee their testimony to your unselfish and unfaltering attention to duty.

We think it is unique in the history of the education of any Municipality to find any teacher who has served without interruption so long a period, as we understand that you have been employed upon the Public School staff for upwards of forty-six years. In that long period ranging back before the time when the scattered Provinces and Crown domains were made into a corporate whole by the Act of Confederation, thousands of the youths of Napanee have gone through your hands and they have been trained by you to read, to spell and to cipher; their hands have been taught to write but above all their characters have been moulded in truthfulness, in uprightness, in sincerity and in courtesy. These latter traits of character you have instilled into your pupils by your own splendid example.

Your long and honorable record as a teacher is an honor to us as it must be satisfying to yourself and now that you are retiring from the arduous and fruitful field in which you have spent so many years, to spend your leisure in avocations less exacting, we wish you happiness and enjoyment for long years to come.

Signed on behalf of the Municipal Corporation of the Town of Napanee this 21st day of June, A.D., 1918.

W. A. GRANGE, J. E. ROBINSON,
Clerk. Mayor.

WHAT THE PRESS RECEIVED FOR ADVERTISING THE VICTORY LOAN.

Various estimates have been made as to the amount the press received from the Government in connection with the press publicity for the Victory Loan, but the actual figures paid were clearly set forth in audited statements submitted to the Annual Meeting of Canadian Press Association, Inc., held in Toronto on June 13th and 14th.

The total amount paid by the Government for advertising space was $165,419.81, which was distributed, among 1,400 newspapers and other publications. Approximately $5,000 was spent in the preparation and distribution to the press of a large number of special articles, illustrations, cartoons, etc., which were inserted in the press without charge. The setting of type and making of duplicate plates of the advertisements for the various publications used and the fees paid to the five co-operating advertising agencies for their services cost in the neighborhood of $37,000 making the total expenditure $208,166.09.

As the total cost of floating the Loan was approximately $5,000,000, the Government's expenditure on press publicity represents less than five per cent. of the total expenditure. It is interesting to note also that the press publicity cost only one-twentieth of one per cent. of the total amount subscribed to the Loan.

The press publicity for the Loan was handled by Canadian Press Association, Inc., and the officers of the Association and its individual members co-operated splendidly in

Rose Day For Red Cross Monday, July 1st

The heavy casualty lists of the past few months with the prospect of heavier still for the rest of the season have made increased demands upon all Red Cross workers. We cannot and must not neglect our wounded. We have been giving month after month ever since the outbreak of war and we must expect to keep right on giving month after month and week after week until the awful conflict is concluded. For so long as our soldiers are suffering so long must we do all in our power to relieve their suffering.

This war is at its most critical stage at the present time and we cannot afford to relax our efforts in any direction. The local Red Cross Society is in need of funds and Dominion Day is to be Rose Day. The rose is the emblem of beauty and was most fittingly chosen by Queen Alexandria as the emblem of those beautiful traits of the human character, charity and mercy, when she first organized Rose Day as a means of helping the Red Cross. Everyone should purchase a rose on that day at his or her own price. No argument should be necessary in order to secure a hearty and generous response. Canvassers will give everyone in town an opportunity to contribute towards this worthy cause. It is to be hoped that the ladies in charge of this work will be greeted with a smile and given liberal donations. They are contributors themselves and are giving their time and many of them are giving their sons and brothers to the cause. No one can afford to pass them by. A rose in your buttonhole on Dominion Day means that you are not unmindful of the boys who have fought and are suffering for you. If you are not wearing one it will be pretty hard to frame an excuse. Don't try it but buy a rose.

Through the "U. E. Loyalist" Chapter, I.O.D.E.

The above Chapter and Committee desire to thank Miss J. Cleall very heartily for a most kind donation during the past week. The June meeting of the Belgian Relief Committee at the home of the Convener, Mrs. F. S. Robinson, was changed from the 17th inst. to Monday 24th, and though but few of the members were present, and consequently all the returns are not yet made, still much encouragement was felt with the amount so far realized. The Belgian Committee also feel that it has in its possession what should prove to be a valuable asset in a long and very interesting letter recently received from Mrs. Agar Adamson replying to charges of disloyalty and unworthiness on the part of the Red

YES! LIFT A CORN OFF WITHOUT PAI

Cincinnati authority tells how to lift a corn or callus so it lifts off with fingers.

You corn-pestered men and women need suffer no longer. Wear the shoe that nearly killed you before, says Cincinnati authority, because a drop of freezezone applied directly on tender, aching corn or callus, stops smartness at once and soon the corn-hardened callus loosens so it can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

A small bottle of freezezone costs very little at any drug store, but will positively take off every hard corn or callus. This should be true as it is inexpensive and is said not irritate the surrounding skin.

If your druggist hasn't any freezezone tell him to get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house. It is fine stuff and acts like a charm every time.

A WOMAN CENSOR.

She Has the Fun of Reading Bri Mail.

The latest and, to a woman, most attractive profession is the postal censor. To the well-educated woman in her prime, hesitating at her choice of service, the postal censorship offers opportunities for advancement not to be found elsewhere. The pay ranges from $7.25 a week while learning, rising by increments of $1 to $15 a week, the maximum for an examiner, with additional bonus. There are at least fifty men earning more than $1.00 year, supervising 30 or 40 examiners each. They have all risen from ranks.

Now they hold the proud title D.A.C. (deputy assistant censor) which they have been elevated to much for their languages as for their general capacity. One girl of 19, gaged two years ago as a typist at a week, rose to $15 within months. Another, beginning at $2.00, drew $20 within eight weeks.

Yet the plaint of the Deputy Censor is that "we cannot get enough of the right kind of women to censor." The latter is the executive head of that vast machine, created mainly for restrictive measures which yet feeds with valuable information not merely the War Office which it now forms an integral part of but the Admiralty, the Foreign Office with its offshoots, the Propaganda Department, Contraband Committee and on which the whole of our blockade activities are based.

Is there enough of the right kind of women anywhere? The right kind of woman has many avenues open to her. Some offer service in France, adventure, romance, the making of history, the glamor of the unit and a chance of honor and glory. But the woman censor, catch she though she may, gets but little in light.

There are women in the censor to-day with three or more years' experience who are not least among the heroines of war. They work in secret and in silence, behind closed doors and their successes are hidden. They will not even tell their friends where they work, let alone what they do. Although the women examiners of mails number some 2,000, against some 500 male examiners, there has been little mention of the women. The recent decision of the authorities to remove some of the secrecy will Miss Fraser's firm but kind discipline, her wise and wholesome teaching of the subjects assigned, and her training and guidance of the hundreds of pupils that have passed through her hands in the highest type of precept and practice, must indeed have had a wonderful radiating influence on our citizens for good. As a stone cast in a lake spreads its disturbance from shore to shore, so her influence must have radiated for good throughout the whole community. It will be hard for the School Board to fill her place.

I would ask Mr. W. A. Grange, the Clerk of the Municipality, and one who was fortunate enough to have Miss Fraser as his first teacher, to read the address from the Town Council.

J. E. ROBINSON, Mayor.

To Miss Mary Fraser:

The Municipal Corporation of the Town of Napanee having been advised that you were about to sever your connection with our Public Schools after many years of continuous, faithful and efficient service and the Council having been pleased to take into consideration the knowledge thus conveyed to them, and

The Council having been further advised that the Government's expenditure on press publicity represents less than five per cent. of the total expenditure. It is interesting to note also that the press publicity cost only one-twentieth of one per cent. of the total amount subscribed to the Loan.

The press publicity for the Loan was handled by Canadian Press Association, Inc., and the officers of the Association and its individual members co-operated splendidly in making the campaign a success. During three months last Fall most of the time of the President, Mr. J. H. Woods, Calgary "Herald," and the office staff, was devoted to the press publicity campaign, and for several weeks the committee of publishers in charge were in almost continuous session. The individual members, on the other hand, contributed, without charge, space in their newspapers and other publications which, if calculated at their regular commercial rates, would run up to more than the total amount paid for the advertising space.

Neither Canadian Press Association Inc., as such, nor any of its officers or committees, received any remuneration for their services in connection with the loan, those services being given voluntarily and in the spirit of national service.

Mrs. F. S. Robinson, changed from the 17th inst. to Monday 24th, and though but few of the members were present, and consequently all the returns are not yet made, still much encouragement was felt with the amount so far realized. The Belgian Committee also feel that it has in its possession what should prove to be a valuable asset in a long and very interesting letter recently received from Mrs. Agar Adamson replying to charges of disloyalty and unworthiness on the part of the Belgian nation, which have had unfortunately a very wide-spread circulation throughout the country. Mrs. Adamson's statements which are given in publicity this week in the local press, should prove convincing to all doubters on this subject, as she is living in Belgium, administering the funds collected for the benefit of the suffering children there, and coming in daily contact with all sorts and conditions of Belgians,—therefore, she is in a position to KNOW whereof she speaks.

A list of the expenditures consequent upon the production of the recent entertainment given by the Daughters of the Empire and Committee in Napanee and Deseronto will appear in next week's paper, which will probably prove to be interesting to many of our readers.

There are women in the censor's to-day with three or more years of service who are not least among the heroines of war. They work in secret and in silence, behind closed doors, and their successes are hidden. They will not even tell their friends where they work, let alone what to do. Although the women examine of mails number some 2,000, again some 500 male examiners, there has been little mention of the women. The recent decision of the authorities to remove some of the secrecy which shrouds the woman censor will let the right women to apply for the work, though naturally there will be no disclosure which can possibly of use to the enemy, and the discipline habit of calling everything confidential will continue. Experience does not demand of recruits, since the work of censorship was only called into being by the harsh needs of war, and the censor's office itself the only place where training and experience can be obtained.

The necessary qualifications are not merely languages, and what that is not just to read other people's dull letters, as seems the general impression; it is much more interesting than that. There are women who know no tongue but their own they have been chosen for their judgment and their unquestionable discretion besides their education and general knowledge. One would emphasize the value of judgment and the opportunities for exercising it! It is a question of weighing up facts, coming to wise and reasonable decisions the whole time. To women with a happy blend of imagination and common sense the work is absorbing at times thrilling.

It is an experience and an education, a privilege to be part of the wonderful mechanism, even as the humblest cog in its wheel of progress; to observe the details of construction and to watch it expand week by week.

For as the war widens the censor throws his net still further over, tightening it until one marvels how the German secret service agent can slip through its manifold mesh. Slip through them he does, and that is why the country needs her daughters to help to outwit him.

In the women's army or navy the average pay of officers is $625 $875, with free quarters. They may leave their homes, and to the woman who is settled in London this is difficulty. But if the London dweller has not the robust health that enables her all day to stand on her feet, though she can do a good day's work "on her head," if her family falters at the thought of France, her come forward to the censors and stay in England. Here, as ordinary censor or examiner of mails she will have responsibility, scope for individuality and the chance of bringing a spy to book her keenness in drawing close net.

The TRAIL BLAZER to greater Motor Car Value

From the standpoint of dollar for dollar value there's not a car made which offers more for your money than the famous Chevrolet Four-Ninety A.

Before the Chevrolet was made in Canada, good cars were all high in price.

But our mammoth production and manufacturing efficiency enables us to sell the Chevrolet Four-Ninety A at a price much lower than its value when compared with other makes of cars.

With the surplus power developed by the famous valve-in-head motor the owner of a Four-Ninety A invariably is the "trail blazer."

Standard equipment includes speedometer, electric starting and lighting, ammeter, oil indicator light equipment, one man top, demountable rims, non-skid tires on rear wheels and many features usually looked for in cars much higher in price.

The Red Cross Society

Alexandra Rose Day, which has become one of the most interesting fete days of England, will be given by our Society on July 1st. By wearing the Queen Mother's rose on that day, one will show active support and loyalty to those brave boys who are risking their all, for our freedom and liberty. We urgently ask for support on July 1st.

By the American Red Cross voting $500,000 to the Canadian Society for the aid of Canadian soldiers, is shown a spirit of brotherhood and sympathy existing between the two nations. Lt. Colonel Marshall in his reply to Washington says "Much as we appreciate the generous contribution of the magnificent sum of $500,000 I am sure the Canadian people will appreciate still more the spirit of your letter and the expressions contained in the resolution."

Two interesting Raffles took place at the Hall on Saturday, when Mrs. Walter Exley became possessor of the handsome yoke given by Mrs. Huffman; and Mr. George Grieve held the lucky number for the ten pound crock of butter donated by Mrs. Edward Young. Handsome sums were realized from the sales.

The following shipment was forwarded to Toronto last week:—42 sets of pyjamas, 18 pairs of hospital boots, 6 wash clothes, 79 comfort bags, 120 towels, 13 dozen handkerchiefs; 3 pillows and 12 pairs of socks.

Miss Mae Steacy has given us another donation of $5.00 for which we are most grateful.

The usual meeting will be held on Saturday, when all are invited.

Maxwell Cars.

Just arrived a shipment of the 1918 Maxwell car on exhibition at the Maxwell Sales Agency, next door to Normile Grocery. This car is worthy of your inspection as it is the most improved and best up-to-date car on the market under $1500, longer wheel base, new springs.

with three or more years service who are not least among the heroes of war. They work in secret, behind closed doors, their successes are hidden, will not even tell their friends they work, let alone what they do. Although the women examiners are numbered some 2,000, against 500 male examiners, there is little mention of the women. Recent decision of the authorities to move some of the secrecy which is the woman censor will lead right women to apply for the job, though naturally there will be disclosure which can possibly be used to the enemy, and the discipline of calling everything confidential will continue. Experience is demanded of recruits, since the job of censorship was only called being by the harsh needs of war and the censors' office itself is only place where training and discipline can be obtained. The necessary qualifications are merely languages, and what they are not just to read other people's letters, as seems the general impression; it is much more interesting than that. There are women there know no tongue but their own; have been chosen for their judgment and their unquestionable discretion besides their education and general knowledge. One would emphasize the value of judgment and the opportunities for exercising it! It is a question of weighing up facts and coming to a wise and reasonable decision the whole time. To women with a good deal of imagination and a keen sense the work is absorbing, and very thrilling. It is an experience and an education, a privilege to be part of this wonderful mechanism, even as the latest cog in its wheel of progress; to observe the details of its function and to watch it expand by week.

As the war widens the censor's work is still further overseas, sending it until one marvels how German secret service agent can get through its manifold meshes, through them he does, and that is why the country needs her daughter to help to outwit him.

The women's army or navy the average pay of officers is $625 to $1,000, with free quarters. They must have their homes, and to the woman is settled in London this is a novelty. But if the London dweller does not the robust health that enables her all day to stand on her feet though she can do a good day's "on her head," if her family is as at the thought of France, let some forward to the censorship stay in England. struggle with liberty, which they did not understand, filled with idealistic notions about the equality of man, and lacking individual initiative, production in Russia has practically ceased, according to the evidences reaching the outside world. Transportation and distribution is so disorganized that even were the peasants of the land producing their usual amount of foodstuffs, the people in the manufacturing population would still be without the necessary food supplies to sustain them in safety and comfort. Unless the people of Russia steady down and organize themselves or allow other authorities to organize them, there is the possibility of one of the most stupendous disasters to a nation and a great people that ever occurred in history. Without authority for whom they have fear and respect, the Russian peasant seems to be without motive or initiative. We read of peasants in their anger against the property-holding class of the late aristocratic regime, destroying not only the personal effects of the nobility and the owning class, but the very crops which they had themselves under the former social organization produced for the nation at large. In their reaction against property owning, they have destroyed the goose that laid the golden eggs. We read of peasants in certain villages having gone to such extremes as to seize the cattle of the local land owner, now deposed, flay them alive and turn them loose. Without the old motive of compulsion to cultivate the land for the land-owner, now that the land has reverted to the peasants and they themselves are the owners, they have neglected to work and to produce the necessities of life. To such a pass is the nation drifting that recent despatches have reported that they so-called Government of present-day Russia are sending plenipotentiaries to China, their formerly despised and so-called decadent neighbor to the east, to make arrangements for provisions to tide them over next winter. It is difficult to imagine China, one of the most densely populated areas in the world, living largely on rice and very meagre fare, having sufficient surplus to feed 150,000,000 people in starving Russia.

Bolshevism is sometimes quoted in this country as an ideal, worthy of imitation. The pass to which Russia has drifted is a warning that Bolshevism and insanity are not very far apart. The nation that will weather the storm of this war the best, is the nation that organizes most efficiently and disciplines itself most strictly. Production must be carried on to a limit of our power. Destructive criticism and petty fault-finding are weaknesses and dangers. Unity of purpose and constituted leadership is essential. It is a case of a strong pull, a long pull and a pull altogether. Men must be found for the army, for munition making and for food production. Non-essential industries must provide men for essential industries. Women in this country must take the places of men to the limit of their power when called upon. Farmers must recognize the necessities of war and the public in general must unite to save the harvest of 1918.

—that wonderful little machine-gun, manageable by one man, light, efficient, dependable.

Like the Maxim, it is the invention of an American, Col. Isaac N. Lewis. Englishmen are apt to think that an invention has at least a double chance of success in the States, yet both the Maxim and the Lewis guns were taken up by the British, and it seems a providential circumstance, considering what an asset the Lewis gun has been to our men in the trenches and tanks, and in the air, that British capital came to Col. Lewis' aid only some 12 months before the war broke out.

After detailing his failure to give his gun to the American Government, the colonel told the U.S.A. military affairs committee:

"I went over to Brussels in 1912, but I soon found that my Belgian company was in the hands of the Germans. My president and managing-director were both under German influence. My company was about to pass under German control. I succeeded, by the help of my loyal Belgian associates, in ousting our president and managing-director.

"I went to London," he continued, "to the Birmingham Small Arms Co. I did not know anybody connected with the company, but I made an appointment to go there with the gun. In forty-eight hours I had closed a contract for the exclusive manufacture of the Lewis gun in Europe. We are working under that contract to-day. They are delivering guns every week to the British forces."

In writing to the Secretary of War at Washington, under date Dec. 11, 1917, the colonel has some very interesting information to give. He says:

"The Lewis gun is no longer a new and untried weapon. It has successfully met every military requirement, under a grilling test of more than three years of daily service on the battlefields of Europe during the greatest war in history."

The colonel's story of how his own Government turned his gun down is remarkable:

"As early as 1911, when the first model of the Lewis gun was built, I took it myself to Washington and presented it in person to the chief of the staff, requesting him to examine it."

He goes on to tell how his offer was ignored again and again, how when he wrote as lately as December, 1913, to the Secretary of War renewing his offer, and asserting his willingness to relinquish royalty, aggregating two and a quarter million dollars on forty thousand guns already under contract for the Government, no reply was vouchsafed. Asked why he wished to make these great sacrifices, Col. Lewis said:

"I got my education at the Government expense. I developed my gun under very discouraging circumstances. I was a poor man with a large family. But there is a deeper question, a far deeper question. This country is facing the struggle of its life. Are we to be a vassal nation or a sovereign nation? That is the balance to-day."

Bulkheads Save Ships.

J. W. Isherwood, naval architect, told a London Express representative recently that "50 per cent. of the merchant ships sunk by U-boats could have been saved if they had been built with bulkheads in the proportion of about one for every forty feet of their length. "It is quite an easy matter," he said, "to build a ship which cannot be sunk by one torpedo and, as a rule, that is sufficient to sink the ships of the

GREAT POTATO WASTE

Can Be Prevented by Thorough Spraying.

Women's Meetings In Full Swing—The Summer Institute Meetings Are of Benefit to Every Woman Who Attends—Topics to Be Discussed and Work Planned.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

POTATOES are sprayed to prevent such fungus disease as Early Blight and Late Blight and Rot. These diseases are caused by plants known as fungi. Those fungi which derive their nourishment from living plants injure them in so doing in various ways and thus give rise to what are known as fungus diseases.

In combating the great majority of fungus diseases methods of prevention only are practicable. Spraying potatoes is not done to cure but to prevent disease. In other words the object of spraying is to cover the surface of the leaves and stems with a substance, poisonous to the spores of fungi, in which they cannot grow, and penetrate the plant. Spraying, therefore, in order to be effective, must be timely and thorough. The spray mixture must be on the plants before the spores reach them and the surface of the leaves and stems must be covered so completely that there is not the smallest space on which a spore can germinate.

Efficient spraying of potatoes depends:

1. Upon the use of the proper fungicide. Bordeaux mixture has so far proved to be the only satisfactory spray mixture for potato diseases.

2. Upon timely and repeated spraying. Spraying should be commenced when the plants are from six to eight inches high and repeated at intervals of from a week to ten days throughout the growing season. From three to seven applications will be required, the number depending upon the weather, the wetter the weather the more frequent the spraying.

3. Upon the liberal use of Bordeaux mixture. From 50 to 150 gallons of Bordeaux mixture should be used per acre at each application.

4. Upon thorough spraying, which means the covering of every portion of the plant with the Bordeaux mixture in the form of a fine mist. This can be done only when the solution is applied with good pressure so as to insure covering every portion of the plant. The best results from spraying are obtained when potato sprayers are used which are fitted with T-joint attachments, so as to insure covering both surfaces of the leaves at each spraying.

5. Upon spraying before rather than after prolonged rainy periods. Infection of the plants takes place during or soon after rain. Therefore it is of the utmost importance to have the spray mixture on the plants when the rain comes.—Prof. J. E. Howett, Ontario Agricultural College.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

Make this beauty lotion cheaply your face, neck, arms and hands

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quart pint of the most wonderful leucodermic skin softener and complexion beautifier by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three or four of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine sieve so no lemon pulp gets in, then the lotion will keep fresh for months. A woman knows that lemon juice is not only a skin softener but also a skin beautifier, whitener and skin softener, whitener and skin beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounce orchard white at any drug store two lemons from the grocer and make a quart pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily on the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hair.

The Importance of Women's Institute Meetings.

A series of meetings which, to the women of rural Ontario, have always proved worth while, and increasingly so the last year or two, is the Women's Institute meetings. These are important because they are so far-reaching in their nature. They afford the town and country woman, no matter what her denomination may be, a channel through which she can be of all-round service to humanity.

Since the war began Red Cross and other patriotic work has, of course, received first consideration. The alleviation of suffering seems peculiarly woman's work. The need is greater to-day than ever.

The great demand by the Allies for certain foods such as beef, pork, wheat and sugar has caused the housewife to change her methods of pre-war days. She must now learn to substitute and to eliminate various forms of waste. Perishable foods must be more widely used, not only in summer, but also in winter. These must be conserved through proper storage, canning or drying. Such subjects as these may be discussed at the meetings. An expert demonstrator may be secured from the Department to give information or a practical demonstration to assist the housewife. The members may club together and do their canning at one centre with one fire if they so choose, and in addition to the work accomplished may have a so-called time together.

The children in the rural districts must not be forgotten. They must be prepared for the great responsibilities which are too soon to fall upon them. Their education must not be neglected. They must not be handicapped by physical imperfections. Subjects of importance to the child must be discussed and means adopted to improve conditions. The Medical Inspection of rural schools and the clinics held through the Women's Institute are doing much to improve conditions.

The girls also need attention. We are apt to forget the girls in our anxiety for the boys. Their lives and their prospects for the future are being affected by this war. Hence opportunities for study, for amusement, for developing their talents to the full, must be afforded them. Many of these opportunities may be secured through the Institute.

Surely with subjects of such vital importance as the above-mentioned, all meetings should be worth while.

We would call the attention of all to the importance of the summer meeting, held throughout June, when the delegate from the Department is in attendance. She has the latest information on all subjects of importance to the Institutes, and is a specialist on her own particular subjects. — G. A. Putnam, Superintendent Women's Institutes.

An Aged Choir.

An aged choir composed of half a dozen grandfathers and at least one great-grandfather, without any assistance, sang the whole music of the service at Witham Parish Church, Essex, England, recently. It was not a case of the "big manly voice turning again to childish treble." They sang so well that all, none more than themselves, were delighted. The great-grandfather, Mr. William Beardwell, is a great old chorister, and several of the grandfathers have been in choirs for over fifty years. They were heartily congratulated on their success in "carrying on" while "the boys" are away fighting.

Blind Billiard Player.

A blind man played a billiard match recently against a man with sight, and scored 62 points in 1 hour 40 minutes. The blind player was Sergt. Shawl, late of the Prince Patricia's Regiment, who lost his eyesight in the second battle of Ypres.

The strangest thing was that, although he advanced his hand to locate the exact place of the balls, only two or three times actually touched a ball. He said that he could sense the ball, just as anyone in a dark room could tell by the "feel" on his face when he is close to a wall. He described it as feeling a coldness. His highest break was nine. — Tit-Bits.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

Make this beauty lotion cheaply for your face, neck, arms and hands.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quart pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to brighten and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whiteners and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

OUR ROLL OF V.C.'S.

Twenty-nine Canadians Have Received Coveted Honor.

A return was tabled recently in the House of Commons giving Canada's roll of V.C.'s. There are twenty-nine of them, of whom eleven have made the supreme sacrifice of courage and devotion to duty.

The story of each act of inspiring heroism is told merely in the brief paragraphs of the British Official Gazette, but the mere outline of the exploits in each case adds an imperishable chapter to the heroic annals of Canadian history.

Those who still live proudly to wear the Cross are:

Major William A. Bishop of the Royal Flying Corps.

Capt. Francis A. C. Scrimger, Canadian Army Medical Service, 14th Montreal Battalion.

Le-Corpl. Frederick Fisher, 13th Battalion.

Pte. John C. Kerr, 49th Battalion.

Corpl. Philip Konowal, 77th Battalion.

Sergt.-Major Robert Hanna, 29th Battalion.

Pte. Michael J. O'Rourke, 47th Battalion.

Capt. Thain Wendall MacDowell, 38th Battalion.

Lieut. Frederick M. W. Harvey, 13th Battalion.

Pte. Joseph G. Pattison, 167th Battalion.

Capt. George R. Peakes, 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles.

Lieut. Christopher P. J. O'Kelly, 144th Battalion.

Sergt. George H. Mullin, Princess Patricia's.

Corpl. Colin Barron, 3rd Battalion.

Pte. Thomas W. Holmes, Canadian Mounted Rifles.

Pte. Cecil J. Kinross, 51th Battalion.

Lieut. Robert Shankland, 43rd Battalion.

Lieut. Henry Strachan, 34th Fort Garry Horse.

The honored dead are:

DOVE DALE.

A Picturesque Spot in the British Isles.

The Dale of the Dove stands out, like its inhabitants, as something apart in English history and literature. The Dalesman is of that hardy type through which one comes into most intimate contact with Norse and Saxon ancestry. The doughty Dalesman stemming the tide of battle, rallying round the English banner at the call of his king, and wrestling victory from almost certain defeat when the day had gone hard with English arms, is a familiar historical figure. To-day he is no longer the most skilful of longbowmen, but is content to typify the honest, sterling qualities and that dogged love of the soil which place the yeoman on a high patriotic plane.

Dove Dales should be approached only on foot. The train drops one unceremoniously at a tiny wayside station and puffs gleefully away, priggishly satisfied at having left one within perhaps two miles of the true starting point by a glistening cascade. Here the stepping-stones, awash with the swift-flowing current, must be crossed, and then the tramp leads along exquisitely beautiful sylvan ways, through deep grass and foliage that tenaciously hold their green throughout the year. Sometimes one is compelled to stop and admire an old-world smugglers' cave of Broddingnagian proportions, or an immense overhanging rock, or towering, slender bowlders that suggest the spires of a church. Larches, in tender green, stand out in strong contrast to the darkness of the firs and the silvery hues of the beeches. Sometimes a ribbon-like stream flows down a narrow canon pocket. The whipping of the waters and the babbling rush of the stream make the softest of music, which harmonizes with the song of a thrush or the pean of the all but invisible baylets, where the monarch of the waters, the trout, dozes and dreams in fancied seclusion. But in their palatial mansion in mid-stream the speckled beauties dart swiftly to and fro, and, when the watery surface is struck by the sun's rays, it is set aglow with vivid color.

Six miles from the entrance to the Dale are the cave of Dove Holes, yawning like monster dragon-jaws, many feet above the path. These were once the haunt of smugglers, and still have an old-time romantic aspect, as if resolved to hold aloof forever from a strait-laced world. Beyond them Dove Dale becomes the Dale of Beresford, owing to the contiguity of the great Beresford estates to which Cotton was heir. The beauties of the Dove are accentuated in Beresford Dale tenfold. Modelled on more spacious lines, its precipitous sides here and there open upon lofty, receding meadows and distant browsing cattle, their diminished forms strangely outlined against the horizon. A feeling of solitude hangs about these river stretches with their barren wastes of moor or heath. As the shadows begin to lengthen across the mossy path by the stream, deep mystery seems to brood over the water. Here are tiny V-shaped bridges and lonely dells mellow in gloom. Here also is the famous Pike's Pool of half lights and fitting shadows; of silvery foam and gentle cascade; of shady nooks where Izaak Walton often lingered at the close of day.

A few yards beyond, the leafy path deserts the river, and, skirting a grove of trees, runs into a pine-tree inclosure. On the opposite bank, as if carefully guarded against intrusion, stands the historic little memorial to Izaak. It is a small outland

WANT TO FIGHT.

Riders of the Plains to Go to the Front.

There are no slackers in the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. Severe casualties sustained by the Canadian cavalry brigade in their heroic fight to stem the German tide in Picardy has resulted in demand for reinforcements. Ever since the outbreak of the war the Mounted Police have been urging that they be permitted to go overseas as a unit. In the early days of the war, with the enemy alien situation in the Northwest demanding strict supervision, the Government felt that the force could render more valuable service at home; at one period it was even increased to double strength. Internment of the most dangerous of the aliens, and the entrance of the United States into the war, combined with the establishment of a provincial mounted police, have changed the situation. The Government during the past year has been endeavoring to meet the desire of the Mounted Police, but the war authorities have always stated that there were sufficient cavalry in France.

The losses of Canadian and British cavalry at Picardy, however, where they were thrown into the breach as infantry, have changed the situation, and, for the first time since the beginning of war, there is a call for cavalry reinforcements. The Ottawa authorities decided that this was an opportunity for the Mounted Police, and decided to ask for 200 men from that force. The force at present consists of 600 men. So fine was the spirit shown that practically the whole six hundred have offered their services.

It is impossible for the men to go to the front as a unit, however, as there are three squadrons in the Canadian cavalry brigade and all are in need of men. These squadrons are the Royal Canadian Dragoons, the Fort Garry Horse and the Strathcona Horse, the historic Canadian units.

As might be expected, the people of Western Canada, intensely proud of these "Riders of the Plains," are strongly urging that the force be permitted to go over as a unit, but the exigencies of the military situation are such that it would seem to be impossible to meet their request. While nothing official has been given out, and the authorities refuse to discuss the matter, it is believed that the resignation of Commissioner Perry and some of the higher officers comes as a protest against the inability of the Government to permit the force to go to the front as an integral body.

There have been persistent rumors for some time that the Government intends to disband the Mounted Police and that this historic force will

Apart from his great personal charm, he was admirably equipped to become a leader in the profession. Although belonging to the rival university, I willingly admit that in the late eighties and early nineties, for those capable of taking advantage thereof and electing to pursue further studies elsewhere after graduation, the University of Toronto afforded the finest medical education in North America. The clinical opportunities at the time were not of the very first order, but the preliminary training in science was singularly full and thorough. The combination of Ramsay Wright's stimulating and thought-compelling lectures in general biology, with A. B. Macallum's practical course in physiology, developed a set of men who to-day are leaders in American medicine: Llewellys Barker, of Baltimore; Thomas McCrae, of Philadelphia (John's elder brother, who also for a time was lieutenant-colonel of C.A.M.C. and head of the medical service of a Canadian General Hospital); W. S. MacCallum, of Columbia, and now again of Johns Hopkins; T. F. Fletcher, of Johns Hopkins (also lieutenant-colonel of C.A.M.C.); Oscar Klotz, of McGill and Pittsburgh, and John McCrae. No school of this generation in North America can claim quite so brilliant a band of physicians and pathologists as original alumni. John McCrae had been fellow in biology at Toronto at the conclusion of his course in arts before coming to me as fellow in pathology at McGill after graduating in medicine."

Just beyond, cascades and dells disappear, the soft music of the waters dies away and, its mission fulfilled, the river leaves its shelter of trees and makes for the open, prosaic meadows, where no man-made path can follow it.—Christian Science Monitor.

Montagu of Beaulieu.

Lord Montagu, who was rescued from the torpedoed ship Persia, in the Mediterranean, is, notwithstanding, once more proceeding to India as mechanical warfare expert for the Government of India. A pioneer motorist in England, he is one of the foremost experts of aerial warfare in the British army, and a member of the House of Lords. He is a most democratic type of man; and fond of introducing newly made acquaintances to his varied activities as shopkeeper, legislator, and landed proprietor. For he keeps a shop in Pall Mall, London, where he sells motor-car literature and edits The Car, and he has a magnificent estate in the New Forest at Braulieu, which, by the way, is pronounced Bewly. Here his study is the huge refectory of the former abbey.

There have been persistent rumors for some time that the Government intends to disband the Mounted Police and that this historic force will soon be but a glorious memory. These rumors, however, are denied by the authorities in Ottawa. They say that the need for the force will remain intact, if reduced, to the end of the war, when its future will be definitely decided.

Great Explorers.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie and Captain George Vancouver are two explorers about whom Canadians ought to know more than they do. These two men were too modest to leave monuments to themselves.

The name Mackenzie was given to the great river to the Arctic by others than the explorer himself. Similarly Captain Vancouver gave names to Burrard Inlet and Point Grey, after two friends in the navy, and left his own unmarked. But others filled the blank by attaching the name Vancouver in later years.

A man less well-known than these two, but who endured more hardship than either, and made more extensive explorations, was Robert Campbell of the Hudson's Bay Company, who discovered the Yukon and went up to its source sixty years before the famous gold rush. The Yukon river should be called the Campbell. This remarkable and devout man spent some twelve years in travelling, in a sort of Livingstoneian way, all through the regions that have since been opened up to civilization in the north. The explorer's son, Mr. Glenlyon Campbell known as Glen, was a member at Ottawa, and died recently at the front.

"So am I," he said grimly. "Still, it was a chance we took—or I took, rather. I seem to have made a mistake or two in my estimate of both you and myself. That is human enough, I suppose. You're making a bigger mistake than I did, though, to let Monohan sweep you off your feet."

There was something that she read for contempt in his tone. It stung her.

"He hasn't swept me off my feet, as you put it," she cried. "Good heavens, do you think I'm that spineless sort of creature? I've never forgotten I'm your wife. I've got a little self respect left yet if I was weak enough to grasp at the straw you threw me in the beginning. I was honest with you then. I'm trying to be honest with you now."

"I know, Stella," he said gently. "I'm not throwing mud. It's a very unfortunate state of affairs, that's all. I foresaw something of the sort when we were married. You were candid enough about your attitude. But I told myself like a conceited fool that I could make your life so full that in a little while I'd be the only possible figure on your horizon. I've failed. I've known for some time that I was going to fail. You're not the thin blooded type of woman that is satisfied with pleasant surroundings and any sort of man. You're bound to run the gamut of all the emotions, some time and somewhere. I loved you and I thought in my conceit I could make myself the man, the one man who would mean everything to you."

"Just the same," he continued, "you've been a fool, and I don't see how you can avoid paying the penalty for folly."

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"You haven't tried to play the game," he answered tensely. "For months you've been withdrawing into your shell. You've been clanking your chains and half heartedly wishing for some mysterious power to strike them off. It wasn't a thing you undertook lightly. It isn't a thing—marriage, I mean—that you hold lightly. That being the case you would have been wise to try making the best of it instead of making the worst of it. But you let yourself drift into a state of mind where you—well, you see the result. I saw it coming. I didn't need to happen in this afternoon to know that there were undercurrents of feeling swirling about. And so the way you feel now is in itself a penalty. If you let Monohan cut any more figure in your thoughts you'll pay bigger in the end."

But you haven't found it yet. I'm very sure of that, although I doubt if I could convince you."

"Let me finish," she pleaded. "You knew I didn't love you; that I was worn out and desperate and clutching at the life line you threw. In spite of that—well, if I fight down this love, or fascination, or infatuation, or whatever it is—I'm not sure myself, except that it affects me strongly—can't we be friends again?"

"Friends! Oh, thunder!" Fyfe exploded.

He came up out of his chair with a blaze in his eyes that startled her, caught her by the arm and thrust her out the door.

"Friends? You and I?" He sank his voice to a harsh whisper. "Good Lord—friends! Go to bed. Good night."

He pushed her into the hall, and the lock clicked between them. For one confused instant Stella stood poised, uncertain; then she went into her bedroom and sat down, her keenest sensation one of sheer relief. Already in those brief hours emotion had well nigh exhausted her. To be alone, to lie still and rest, to banish thought—that was all she desired.

CHAPTER XII.

In Which There Is a Further Clash.

ONE can only suffer so much. Poignant feeling brings its own anaesthetic. When Stella Fyfe fell into a troubled sleep that night the storm of her emotions had beaten her of some one's approach. She rose, with an impulse to fly, to escape a meeting she had not desired. And as she rose the breath stopped in her throat.

Twenty feet behind Monohan came Jack Fyfe with his hunter's stride, soundlessly over the moss, a rifle drooping in the crook of his arm. A sunbeam striking obliquely between two firs showed her his face plainly, the faint curl of his upper lip.

Something in her look arrested Monohan. He glanced around, twisted about, froze in his tracks, his back to her. Fyfe came up. Of the three he was the coolest, the most rigorously self possessed. He glanced from Monohan to his wife, back to Monohan. After that his blue eyes never left the other man's face.

"What did I say to you yesterday?" Fyfe opened his mouth at last. "But then I might have known I was wasting my breath on you!"

"Well," Monohan retorted insolently, "what are you going to do about it? This isn't the stone age."

Fyfe laughed unpleasantly.

"Lucky for you. You'd have been eliminated long ago," he said. "No, it takes the present age to produce such rotten specimens as you."

A deep flush rose in Monohan's cheeks. He took a step toward Fyfe, his hands clinched.

"You wouldn't say that if you weren't armed," he taunted hoarsely.

"No?" Fyfe cast the rifle to one side. It fell with a metallic clink against a stone. "I do say it, though, you see. You are a sort of a yellow dog, Monohan. You know it, and you know that I know it. That's why it stings you to be told so."

Monohan stepped back and slipped out of his coat. His face was crimson. "I'll teach you something!" he snarled.

He lunged forward as he spoke, shooting a straight arm blow for Fyfe's face. It swept through empty air, for Fyfe, poised on the balls of his feet, ducked under the driving fist and slapped Monohan across the mouth with the open palm of his hand.

"Tag," he said sardonically. "You're it."

Monohan pivoted and, rushing, swung right and left, missing by inches. Fyfe's mocking grin seemed to madden him completely. He rushed again, launching another vicious blow that threw him partly off his balance. Before he could recover Fyfe kicked both feet from under him, sent him sprawling on the moss.

Stella stood like one stricken. The very thing she dreaded had come about. Yet the manner of its unfolding was not as she had visualized it when she saw Fyfe near at hand. She saw now a side of her husband that she had never glimpsed, that she found hard to understand. She could have understood him beating Monohan senseless, if he could. A murderous fury of jealousy would not have surprised her. This did. He had not struck a blow, did not attempt to strike.

She could not guess why, but she saw that he was playing with Monohan, making a fool of him, for all Monohan's advantage of height and reach. Fyfe moved like the light, always be-

"You think you love him," Fyfe made low reply. "As a matter of fact you love what you think he is. I dare say that he has sworn his affection by all that's good and great. But if you were convinced that he didn't really care, that his flowery protestations had a double end in view would you still love him?"

"I don't know," she murmured. "But that's beside the point. I do love him. I know it's unwise. It's a feeling that has overwhelmed me in a way that I didn't believe possible, that I had hoped to avoid. But—but I can't pretend, Jack. I don't want you to misunderstand. I don't want this to make us both miserable. I don't want it to generate an atmosphere of suspicion and jealousy. I never cheated at anything in my life. You can trust me still, can't you?"

"Absolutely," Fyfe answered without hesitation.

"Then that's all there is to it," she replied, "unless—unless you're ready to give me up as a hopeless case and let me go away and blunder along the best I can."

"I haven't even considered that," he said. "Very likely it's unwise of me to say this—it will probably antagonize you—but I know Monohan better than you do. I'd go pretty far to keep you two apart—now—for your sake."

"It would be the same if it were any other man," she muttered. "I can understand that feeling in you. It's so—so typically masculine."

"No, you're wrong there, dead wrong," Fyfe frowned. "I'm not a self-sacrificing brute by any means. Still, knowing that you'll only live with me on sufferance, if you were honestly in love with a man that I felt was halfway decent, I'd put my feelings in my pocket and let you go. If you cared enough for him to break every tie, to face the embarrassment of divorce, why, I'd figure you were entitled to your freedom and whatever happiness it might bring. But Monohan—h—, I don't want to talk about him! I trust you, Stella. I'm banking on your own good sense. And along with that good, natural common sense, you've got so many illusions. About life in general and about men. They seem to have centered about this one particular man. I can't open your eyes or put you on the right track. That's a job for yourself. All I can do is to sit back and wait."

His voice trailed off huskily. Stella put a hand on his shoulder. "Do you care so much as all that, Jack," she whispered, "even in spite of what you know?"

"For two years now," he answered, "you've been the biggest thing in my life. I don't change easy. I don't want to change. But I'm getting hopeless."

"I'm sorry, Jack," she said. "I can't begin to tell you how sorry I am. I didn't love you to begin with—"

"And you've always resented that," he broke in. "You've hugged that ghost of a loveless marriage to your bosom and sighed for the real romance you'd missed. Well, maybe you did."

She could not guess why, but she saw that he was playing with Monohan, making a fool of him, for all Monohan's advantage of height and reach. Fyfe moved like the light, always be-

CHAPTER XII.

In Which There Is a Further Clash.

ONE can only suffer so much. Poignant feeling brings its own anaesthetic. When Stella Fyfe fell into a troubled sleep that night the storm of her emotions had beaten her sorely. Morning brought its physical reaction. She could see things clearly and calmly enough to perceive that her love for Monohan was fraught with factors that must be taken into account. All the world loves a lover, but her world did not love lovers who kicked over the conventional traces. She had made a niche for herself. There were ties she could not break lightly, and she was not thinking of herself alone when she considered that, but of her husband and Jack junior, of Linda Abbey and Charlie Benton, of each and every individual whose life touched more or less directly upon her own.

She came down to breakfast calmly enough.

She told herself that in first seeking the line of least resistance she had manifested weakness, that since her present problem was indirectly the outgrowth of that original weakness she would be weak no more. So she tried to meet her husband as if nothing had happened, in which she succeeded outwardly very well indeed, since Fyfe himself chose to ignore any change in their mutual attitude.

She busied herself about the house that forenoon, seeking deliberately a multitude of little tasks to occupy her hands and her mind.

But when lunch was over she was at the end of her resources. Jack junior settled in his crib for a nap. Fyfe went away to that area back of the camp where arose the crash of falling trees and the labored puffing of donkey engines. She could hear faint and far the voices of the falling gangs that cried "Tim-ber-r-r-r."

She longed for some secluded place to sit and think or try to stop thinking. And without fully realizing the direction she took she walked down past the camp, crossed the skid road, stepping lightly over main line and haul back at the donkey engineer's warning and went along the lake shore.

A path wound through the belt of brush and hardwood that fringed the lake. Not until she had followed this up on the neck of a little promontory south of the bay did she remember with a shock that she was approaching the place where Monohan had begged her to meet him. She looked at her watch. Two-thirty. She sought the shore line for sight of a boat, wondering if he would come in spite of her refusal. But to her great relief she saw no sign of him. Probably he had thought better of it, had seen now as she had seen then that no good and an earnest chance of evil might come of such a clandestine meeting, had taken her stand as final.

She was glad, because she did not want to go back to the house. She did not want to make the effort of wandering away in the other direction to find that restful peace of woods and water. She moved up a little on the point until she found a mossy boulder and sat down on that, resting her chin in her palms, looking out over the placid surface of the lake with somber eyes.

And so Monohan surprised her. The knoll lay thick carpeted with moss. He was within a few steps of her when a twig cracking underfoot apprised her

She could not guess why, but she saw that he was playing with Monohan, making a fool of him, for all Monohan's advantage of height and reach. Fyfe moved like the light, always beyond Monohan's vegeful blows, slipping under those driving fists to slap his adversary, to trip him, mocking him with the futility of his effort.

The elusive light footedness of the man, the successive stinging of those contemptuous slaps at last maddened Monohan into ignoring the rules by which men fight. He dropped his hands and stood panting with his exertions. Suddenly he kicked, a swift lunge for Fyfe's body.

Fyfe leaped aside; then he closed. Powerful and weighty a man as Monohan was, Fyfe drove him halfway around with a short arm blow that landed near his heart and while he staggered from that clamped one thick arm about his neck in the strangle hold. Holding him helpless, bent backward across his broad chest, Fyfe slowly and systematically choked him. He shut off his breath until Monohan's tongue protruded and his eyes bulged glassily, and horrible, gurgling noises issued from his gasping mouth.

Fyfe lifted his eyes to hers. The horror he saw there may have stirred him, or he may have considered his object accomplished. Stella could not tell. But he flung Monohan from him with a force that sent him reeling a dozen feet, to collapse on the moss. It took him a full minute to regain his breath, to rise to unsteady feet, to find his voice.

"You can't win all the time," he gasped. "Some day I'll show you that you can't."

With that he turned and went back the way he had come. Fyfe stood silent, hands resting on his hips, watching until Monohan pushed out a slim speed launch from under cover of overhanging alders and set off down the lake.

"Well," he remarked then in a curiously detached, impersonal tone. "The lightning will begin to play by and by, I suppose."

"What do you mean?" Stella asked breathlessly.

about desperate thought, with glowing coolness paradoxically there burned better the flame of an elemental wrath. What right had he to lay hands on her? Her shoulders ached; her feet were bruised from the terrible grip of his fingers. The very sound of his footsteps behind her was maddening. To be suspected and watched, to be continually the target of jealous fury—no, a thousand times no! She wheeled on him at last.

"I can't stand this!" she cried. "It beyond endurance. We're like flint on steel to each other now. If today's sample of what we may expect it's better to make a clean sweep of everything. I've got to get away from here and from you—from everybody."

Fyfe motioned her to a nearby log.

"Sit down," said he. "We may as well have it out here."

For a few seconds he busied himself with a cigar, removing the band with utmost deliberation, biting the end of applying the match, his brows puckered slightly.

"It's very unwise of you to me Monohan like that," he uttered finally. "Oh, I see," she flashed. "Do you suggest that I met him purposely—I appointment? Even if I did?"

"That's for you to say, Stella," he interrupted gravely. "I told you last night that I trusted you absolutely. do so far as really vital things are concerned, but I don't always trust your judgment. I merely know that Monohan sneaked along shore, hid his boat and stole through the timber to where you were sitting. I happened to see him, and I followed him to see what he was up to, why he should take such measures to keep under cover."

"The explanation is simple," she answered stiffly. "You can believe it or not, as you choose. My being there was purely unintentional. If I had seen him before he was close I should certainly not have been there. I had been at odds with myself all day, and I went for a walk to find a quiet place where I could sit and think."

"It doesn't matter now," he said. "Only you'd better try to avoid things like that in the future. Would your mind telling me just exactly what you meant a minute ago—just what you propose to do?"

"I think it's better that I should away," Stella said. "I want you to agree that I should; then there will be no talk or anything disagreeable from outside sources. I'm strong. I can't be a relief to have to wait. I won't have to be the kitchen drudge Charlie made of me. I've got my voice. I'm quite sure I can capitalize the But I've got to go. Anything's better than this, anything that's clean and decent. I'd despise myself if I stay on as your wife feeling as I do. It was a mistake in the beginning, a marriage."

"Nevertheless," Fyfe said slowly. "I afraid it's a mistake you'll have abide by—for a time. All that you may be true, although I don't admit myself. Offhand I'd say you were simply trying to welch on a fair bargain. I'm not going to let you do it blind all wrought up to a pitch where you can scarcely think coherently." He did not answer. His eyes turned slowly. She saw now that his face was white and rigid, that the line of his lips drew harder together as he looked at her, but she was not prepared for the storm that broke. She did not comprehend the tempest that swirled within him until he had her by the shoulders, his fingers crushing into soft flesh like the jaws of a trap, clinging her as a terrier might shake a till the heavy coils of hair cascaded
over her shoulders, and for a second he tugged at her heart, for she knew he meant to kill her.
When he did desist he released her with a thrust of his arms that sent her reeling against a tree, shaken to the roots of her being, though not without anger had displaced that. A protest against his brute strength,
and his passionate outbreak, stirred appearances were against her.
She knew. Even so, she revolted against his cave man roughness. She was amazed to find herself longing for power to strike him.
He faced him, trembling, leaning against the tree trunk, staring at him in impotent rage. And the fire died of his eyes as she looked. He drew deep breath or two and turned away, lick up his rifle. When he faced it with that in his hand the old kind of immobility was in place. He stood while Stella gathered up her tattered hairpins and made shift to brush her hair into a semblance of order;
he said gently:
"I won't break old like that again."
"Once is enough."
"More than enough for me," he announced.

He disdained reply. Striking off
the path that ran to the camp,
he walked rapidly, choking a rising flood of desperate thought. With growling coolness paradoxically there burned within the flame of an elemental fire. What right had he to lay hands

believe it and disdained it if you please.
If you were leaving me for a man, a real man, I think I could bring myself to make it easy for you and wish you luck. But you're not. He's"—

"Can't we leave him out of it?" she demanded. "I want to get away from you both. Can you understand that?
It doesn't help you any to pick him to pieces."

"No, but it might help you if I could rip off that swathing of idealization you've wrapped around him," Fyfe observed patiently. "It's not a job I have much stomach for, however, even if you were willing to let me try. But to come back. You've got to stick it out with me, Stella. You'll hate me for the constraint, I suppose, but until—until things shape up differently—you'll understand what I'm talking about by and by. I think—you've got to abide by the bargain you made with me. I could not force you to stay, I know. But there's one hold you can't break—not if I know you at all."

"What is that?" she asked icily.

"The kid's," he murmured.

Stella buried her face in her hands.

"I'd forgotten—I'd forgotten," she whispered.

"You understand, don't you?" he said hesitatingly. "If you leave—I keep our boy."

"Oh, you're devilish—to use a club
like that!" she cried. "You know I wouldn't part from my baby—the only thing I've got that's worth having."

"He's worth something to me, too," Fyfe muttered, "a lot more than you think, maybe. I'm not trying to club
you. There's nothing in it for me. But for him—well, he needs you. It isn't his fault he's here or that you're unhappy. I've got to protect him, see that he gets a fair shake. I can't see anything to it but for you to go on being Mrs. Jack Fyfe until such time as you get back to a normal poise. Then it will be fine enough to try to work out some arrangement that won't be too much of a hardship on him. It's that or a clean break in which you go
your own way and I try to mother him to the best of my ability. You'll understand some time why I'm showing my teeth this way."

"You have everything on your side,"
she admitted dully after a long interval of silence. "I'm a fool. I admit it.
I have things your way, but it won't work. Jack. This farce between us will only smolder. I think you lay a little too much stress on Monohan.
It isn't that I love him so much as that I don't love you at all. I can live without him—which I mean to do in any case—far easier than I can live with
you. It won't work."

"Don't worry," he replied. "You won't be annoyed by me in person. I'll have my hands full elsewhere."

CHAPTER XIII.

The Opening Gun.

THE month of November slid day
by day into the limbo of the past.
The rains washed the land unceasingly. Gray veillings of mist and cloud draped the mountain slopes. As drab a shade colored Stella Fyfe's daily outlook. She was alone a great deal. Even when they were together, she and her husband, words did not come easily between them. He was away a great deal, seeking, she knew,
the old panacea of work, hard, unremitting work, to abate the ills of his spirit. She envied him that outlet.
Left for her there was none.

Lefty Howe's wife was at the camp
now on one of her occasional visits.

Stella passed on. She wanted to hear, but it went against her grain to eavesdrop. Her pause had been purely involuntary. When she became conscious that she was eagerly drinking in each word she hurried by.

Her mind was one urgent question
mark while she laid the sleeping youngster in his bed and removed her heavy clothes. What sort of hostilities did Monohan threaten? Had he let a hopeless love turn to the acid of hate for the man who nominally possessed her?
Stella could scarcely credit that. It was too much at variance with her idealistic conception of the man. He would never have recourse to such littleness. Still, the biting contempt in Fyfe's voice when he said to Benton: "You underestimate Monohan.
He'll play safe; * * * he's foxy." That stung her to the quick. That was not said for her benefit. It was Fyfe's profound conviction. Based on what?

She followed him.

the doorway.

"No; I'm coming," she persisted.
They met the lantern bearer at the foot of the steps.

"Well, Thorsen?" Fyfe shot at him.
There was an unusual note of sharpness in his voice, an irritated expectation.

Stella saw that it was the skipper of the Panther, a big and burly Dane. He raised the lantern a little. The dim light on his face showed it bruised and swollen. Fyfe grunted.

"Our boom is hung up," he said plaintively. "They've blocked the river. I got licked for arguin' the point."

"How's it blocked?" Fyfe asked.

"Two swiftners uh logs strung across commented dryly. "Well, take the Pan-

Lefty Howe's wife was at the camp now on one of her occasional visits. Howe was going across the lake one afternoon to see a Siwash whom he had engaged to catch and smoke a winter's supply of salmon for the camps. Mrs. Howe told Stella, and on impulse Stella bundled Jack junior into warm clothing and went with them for the ride.

When she returned from the launch trip Fyfe was home and Charlie Benton with him. She crossed the heavy rugs on the living room floor noiselessly in her overshoes, carrying Jack junior asleep in her arms. And so in passing the door of Fyfe's den she heard her brother say:

"But, good Lord, you don't suppose he'll be saphead enough to try such fool stunts as that! He couldn't make it stick, and he brings himself within the law first crack. And the most he could do would be to annoy you."

"You underestimate Monohan," Fyfe returned. "He'll play safe personally so far as the law goes. He's foxy. I advise you to sell if the offer comes again. If you make any more breaks at him he'll figure some way to get you. It isn't your fight, you know. You unfortunately happen to be in the road."

"Hanged if I do!" Benton ejaculated. "I'm all in the clear. There's no way he can get me, and I'll tell him what I think of him again if he gives me half a chance. I never liked him, anyhow. Why should I sell when I'm just getting in real good shape to take that timber out myself? Why, I can make a hundred thousand dollars in the next five years on that block of timber. Besides, without being a sentimental sort of beggar, I don't lose sight of the fact that you helped pull me out of a hole when I sure needed a pull. And I don't like this high handed style. No; if it comes to a showdown I'm with you, Jack, as far as I can go. What the thunder can he do?"

"Nothing that I can see," Fyfe laughed unpleasantly. "But he'll try. He has dollars to our cents. He could throw everything he's got on Roaring lake into the discard and still have nothing. Still, the thing contempt in Fyfe's voice when he said to Benton: "You underestimate Monohan. He'll play safe; * * * he's foxy." That stung her to the quick. That was not said for her benefit. It was Fyfe's profound conviction. Based on what? He did not form judgments on momentary impulse. She recalled that only in the most direct way had he ever passed criticism on Monohan, and then it lay mostly in a tone, suggested more than spoken. Yet he knew Monohan, had known him for years. They had clashed long before she was a factor in their lives.

Fyfe and Benton came to dinner more or less preoccupied, an odd mood for Charlie Benton. Afterward they went into session behind the closed door of Fyfe's den. An hour or so later Benton went home. While she listened to the soft chuff-a-chuff-a-chuff of the Chickamin dying away in the distance Fyfe came in and slumped down in a chair before the fire where a big fir stick crackled. He sat there silent, a half smoked cigar clamped in one corner of his mouth, the lines of his square jaw in profile, determined, rigid. Stella eyed him covertly.

She leaned forward to speak. Words quivered on her lips, but as she struggled to shape them to utterance the blast of a boat whistle came screaming up from the water, near and shrill and imperative.

Fyfe came out of his chair like a shot. He landed poised on his feet, lips drawn apart, hands clinched. He held that pose for an instant, then relaxed, his breath coming with a quick sigh.

Stella stared at him. Nerves! She knew the symptoms too well. Nerves at terrible tension in that big, splendid body! A slight quiver seemed to run over him; then he was erect and calmly himself again, standing in a listening attitude.

"That's the Panther," he said, "pulling in to the Waterbug's landing. Did I startle you when I bounced up like a cougar, Stella?" he asked, with a wry smile. "I guess I was half asleep. That whistle jolted me."

Stella glanced out the shaded window.

"Some one's coming up from the float with a lantern," she said. "Is there—is there likely to be anything wrong, Jack?"

"Anything wrong?" He shot a quick glance at her, then casually, "Not that I know of."

The bobbing lantern came up the

"Swift work. There wasn't a sign of a move when I left this morning," Fyfe commented dryly. "Well, take the Panther around to the inner landing. I'll be there."

"What's struck that feller Monohan?" the Dane sputtered angrily. "Has he got any license to close the Tyee? He says he has—an' backs his argument strong, believe me. Maybe you can handle him. I couldn't. Next time I'll have a cant book handy. By jingo, you gimme my pick uh Lefty's crew, Jack, an' I'll bring that cedar out."

"Take the Panther round," Fyfe replied. "We'll see."

Thorsen turned back down the slope. In a minute the thrum of the boat's exhaust arose as she got under way.

Difficulties of Correspondents.

F. Ashmead-Bartlett, the British writer, declares that in 1914, at the commencement of hostilities, though the military authorities would not allow any correspondents with the armies, neither the military authorities nor the Foreign Office, at this the most critical period in our history, put any obstacles in the way of anyone who possessed a passport and who wished to cross the Channel. The channel ports like Boulogne, Calais and Dunkirk, were full of pressmen who had been sent over to collect any scraps of news or rumors that might drift back from the firing-line from wounded or deserters, or from those engaged on the lines of communication. I should say that at this time the precautions were so lax that all three of these towns were hotbeds of spies, who had little difficulty in passing through the Belgian army back into the German lines. The anomalies of such a situation are obvious. Here was the press fully prepared to send its best representatives to the front as properly accredited, and yet were refused permission, while dozens of unauthorized pressmen were allowed to hang about the communications, with the bolder occasionally attempting and sometimes succeeding in penetrating the charmed circle and reaching the fighting-line.

COUNTY W.C.T.U. CONVENTION

The Ninth Annual Convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union for Counties of Hastings and Lennox and Addington was held in Napanee on Friday and Saturday, June 14 and 15th.

The opening session on Friday was largely taken up with reports from the Local Unions and Superintendents of various departments, appointment of committees, and general business.

The County President, Mrs. Gibbs Belleville, occupied the chair during all the sessions, and the success of the convention is largely due to the intense zeal for the Temperance cause and the bettering of social and moral conditions in general.

The Corresponding Secretary reported seven Unions and one "Y", with membership of 190 and two honor members. The total receipts during the year amounted to $1203.25. Belleville "Y" has 43 members. Lo, Temperance Legions has 91 members.

Evangelistic Supt., Mrs. Dunwoody Newburgh, reported that Selby, Triton and Newburgh observed devotional half hour.

Supt. of Law Enforcement, M. Hatton, Trenton, reported that 14 Unions were for law enforcement; suggested that each Union secure copy of the revised Criminal Code.

The Supt. of Parlor Meetings, J. Douglas, reported advancement of that department.

Scientific temperance was discussed and the great question concerning was how and where can our boys and girls best be educated regarding evils of tobacco and alcohol? It was the consensus of opinion that public schools was by far the best place because every child was compelled to go to school, consequently every child would receive the instruction.

Friday afternoon session was both interesting and educative. Three very scholarly papers were given by Madames Day, Hatton and Parks.

Mrs. Day in her paper on "Place the W.C.T.U. holds in Christ Work" said if we study carefully for our motto, "For God and Home in Every Land," and then the different purposes of our Society, we have in nutshell the place the W.C.T.U. holds in christian work.

The purposes of the society are to unitedly array the Christ women against the manufacture and use of intoxicating liquors a beverage; to educate and influence society in favor of sobriety and true; to impress upon the youth of our land the awful responsibility resting upon those, either supporting, engaged in the liquor traffic; to lay individually for the inebriate, liquor seller, the fallen of our sex, and for the neglected masses of our cities and towns hitherto reached and uncared for, to hear co-operate with other Temperance societies in combating the evils of temperance and to unite with other society which is endeavoring justly and guided by christian principles to procure more advanced stringent legislation on the subject to strive by every means in our power to secure the thorough enforcement of the temperance laws we ready possess.

The W.C.T.U. is a tributary of church. It assists the church spreading its christian principles as large a field as possible. It is church's right hand, thus enable the church to accomplish much.

SELECTING SOWS AND BOARS

Quality Has Important Bearing on High Dressing Percentage in Breeding Animals.

In choosing sows and boars for breeding, remember that quality has an important bearing on a high dressing percentage.

Evidences of quality are soft, fine, silky hair; smooth, soft skin, free of folds or wrinkles; bone of medium size, strong, and dense. The general appearance of the pig should be smooth and refined. These external signs are an indication of the quality of the meat and of the percentage of offal when the animal is dressed.

PLANTFOODS FOR A GARDEN

Commercial Fertilizer Enriches Soil and Increases Its Productive Capacity.

Commercial fertilizer may be used to considerable advantage as a supplement to barnyard manure on many garden soils. The manure supplies some plantfood and humus to make the land mellow; the commercial plantfoods then enrich the soil and increase its productive capacity.

Manure Rich in Plant Food.

Manure from grain, meat and boned fens is very rich in plant food and is nearly equal to guano.

THE INEQUALITY OF THE LAW GOVERNING MEN AND WOMEN

In dealing so ably with this subject Mrs. Hutton referred to the Crim Code and said: "Where is there justice in the fact that the law makes a girl responsible for her character at the tender age of sixteen, but a boy is not held responsible until he is twenty-one?"

Under present conditions women girls are compelled to go out and take their place in the battle of life and fill the places of husband brothers who may never return. They are doing the same work, but not receiving the same pay.

Is this justice?

During the past year five bills, dealing with the betterment of our municipal laws, passed the Commons were thrown out by the Senate.

This state of affairs lays heavy the heart of every honest, broad minded woman, who has awoken from her life of indifference in relation to the evils that are perpetrated the wrongs that others suffer.

The tap root of all the crime, injustice that is rampant in our to-day is "the nation has forged God."

We must work and pray and so that we may have a better, cleaner country for our boys to come to after the war is over.

"How the W. C. T. U. can use press" was the subject of a very critical paper given by Mrs. Parks Napanee.

The speaker paid a tribute of praise to our "local press" for their easy and generosity.

We should not miss any opening use the pen to influence public opinion. There never was a time in world's history when the press of so wide open a door for the dissemination and ventilation of thought ideas upon religious and reform subjects as the present. A few years temperance articles were scarcely created by newspapers, if accepted at all.

Local newspapers are the channels through which temperance work can be placed before those seldom read a temperance paper.

Every Local Union should have Press Superintendent—a woman ability and tact. Secure a place for your local paper. Submit only pointed articles. In short, make best use of the best means for dissemination of information regarding work.

The convention was honored by being present the Dominion President W.C.T.U., Mrs. Gordon Wright.

The distinguished visitor was introduced by Mrs. Gibson and was warmly received by the delegates. Wright is one of the leaders in a form movements in our Dominion hurried away from the National Council of Women in order to fill previous engagement. In alluding this later she said her presence at our County Convention was due to "a scrap of paper." Her word goes forth. It was sufficient.

In referring to the Dominion prohibition, the strong temperance sentiment, the enfranchisement women, she said The White Ribbon had come into their kingdom.

COUNTY W.C.T.U CONVENTION

The Ninth Annual Convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, or Counties of Hastings and Lennox and Addington was held in Napanee on Friday and Saturday, June 14th and 15th.

The purposes of the society are:—To unitedly array the Christian women against the manufacture, sale and use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage; to educate and influence society in favor of sobriety and virtue; to impress upon the youth of our land the awful responsibility resting upon those, either supporting, or engaged in the liquor traffic; to labor individually for the inebriate, the liquor seller, the fallen of our own sex, and for the neglected masses in our cities and towns hitherto un-reached and uncared for; to heartily co-operate with other Temperance Societies in combating the evils of intemperance and to unite with any other society which is endeavoring earnestly and guided by christian principles to procure more advanced and stringent legislation on the subject; to strive by every means in our power to secure the thorough enforcement of the temperance laws we already possess.

is our responsibility. Owing to the greatness of our task we might ask ourselves, "who is sufficient for these things?" The answer comes almost intuitively "not by might or by power but by MY spirit." Women should gird on the armour and help win the war. Cast aside the non-essentials and strive with all our might to do the essential. There is something wrong with the woman whose home is up to the standard of excellence. Women's work should be without stint or limit; we must incorporate into our lives the quality of endurance. We must measure up to all that is expected of us—our special obligations are, caring for the young, safe-guarding our girls, and making Canada a safe place for our men to come home to. God is calling us to be pathfinders in a great reform.

On Friday evening Mrs. Wright gave a very interesting address in Grace church on "Gain in Sacrifice." Her mother love knows what sacrifice means, for she has given three sons in defence of the Empire. To illustrate her subject she referred to the sacrifice the prairies of the west had made to serve the best interests of humanity. A few years ago the prairies were one beautiful mass of bloom; calm, peaceful, resplendent—a lovely sight—but to serve the highest interests of mankind they had to be torn and lacerated, shorn of their beauty, trampled and harrowed—broken to pieces. All this had to be before they could bring forth the vast quantities of grain that have fed and sustained human life.

Was there not gain in all this sacrifice?

Serbia and Belgium quiet, happy, prosperous, beautiful little countries—now devastated, lacerated, torn asunder, are going to rise again and take their places among the great nations of the globe. Not any more will they be the minor nations but they will stand side by side upon equal footing with the other European powers. Gain in sacrifice—surely so.

The speaker quoted instance after instance of the great gain that comes through sacrifice and was optimistic in her views as to the condition of affairs resulting from the sacrifice that is being made in defence of liberty and righteousness.

A hearty vote of thanks was voted to Mrs. Wright for her interesting and instructive address.

Miss Vera Armstrong and Miss Norma Shannon sang two beautiful solos.

Mrs. Cameron Wilson gave a violin selection and Miss Rowena Smith played the accompaniment on the piano.

On Saturday morning, after the usual devotional exercises, officers for the year were elected. The result of the ballot was as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Mrs. Williams, Belleville.

Pres.—Mrs. S. Gibson, Belleville

Advisory Pres.—Mrs. Rockwell.

1st Vice—Mrs. N. Miller, Napanee.

2nd Vice—Mrs. T. Hatton, Trenton.

Cor. Sec.—Miss L. Anderson, Napanee.

Rec. Sec.—Mrs. Rogers, Napanee.

Treas.—Miss Reeves.

Convenors—Evangelistic, Mrs. Dunwoodie; Soldiers' Comforts, Mrs. Holden; Law Enforcement, Mrs. Hatton; Literature, Mrs. Williams; L. T. Legion, Miss Gandier; Press, Mrs. Parks; Medal Contest, Miss Farley; Social and Moral Reform, Mrs. Graham; Parlor Meetings, Mrs. Douglas; Temperance in S. Schools, Mrs. Sage; Miss. Work among Sailors, Mrs. Madole; Anti-Narcotic, Mrs. Curry; Representatives to Dominion Convention in Ottawa—Mesdames Gibson, Miller, Parks, Hatton, Vandyke.

In view of the pressing need for social and moral reform a number of from Toronto (District re a monument in the form of a drinking fountain, to the memory of late F. S. Spence, who had given so generously of his time and means to temperance cause.

Moved and seconded that each Union give a small donation to said worthy object and that the contributions be passed on to County Treasurer.

The Courtesy Committee presented the following resolution:

Resolved that our grateful thanks be extended to the ladies of the Napanee Union; to the friends who have so graciously entertained us; to the caretakers, trustees and pastors, to the soloists and accompanists, to Mrs. Day, Mrs. Hatton, and Mrs. Parks for their splendid papers, and to Mrs. Gordon Wright for her information and inspiration. We feel our convention has been wonderfully blessed in having Mrs. Wright with us; and to all others who have helped in any way to make our convention such a decided success.

A badge of honor was pinned on our County President by the Dominion President in recognition of the success the organization has attained in the county.

Before closing Mrs. Wright impressed the officers of their duties. She urged that more time be given to prayer. The world needs more prayer than anything else. Faithfulness and endurance are necessary, but above all things prayer is the most necessary.

In the reaction toward the directoire, which has come about through the influence of many designers, there is a return to the classicism that was insisted upon by Mme. Tallien and Josephine in the days of the directoire. You remember, recalls a fashion correspondent, that these two women established simplicity and, history says, seminudity, as a protest to the extraordinary frivolity of the gowns of Marie Antoinette.

Our fashionable women have already adopted the short hair which these

Killed by Poisons

All scientists agree that poisonous products in the blood are eliminated by the kidneys and liver. The kidneys act as a kind of filter for these products. When the kidneys are changed or degenerated, by disease or old age, then these poisons are retained in the body. If we wish to prevent old age coming on too soon, or if we want to increase our chances for a long life, Dr. Pierce of 'Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., says that you should drink plenty of water daily between meals to flush the kidneys. Then procure Anuric at a drug store. This Anuric drives the uric acid out. Scientific men have learned that in gout, also rheumatism, poisonous uric acid crystals are deposited in or about the joints, in the muscles—where inflammation is set up.

If we wish to keep our kidneys in the best condition a diet of milk and vegetables, with only a little meat once a day, is the most suitable. Drink plenty of pure water, take Anuric three times a day for a month.

You can obtain a trial pkg. of Anuric by writing Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., or Bridgeburg, Ont., enclosing 10c.

St. Catharines, Ont.—"For sixteen years I have been a sufferer from kidney trouble; my back has ached almost continuously and I have had rheumatic pains in my arms, hands and lower limbs. I have doctored and tried every medicine recommended to me, but have never found the relief in anything (no matter how much I took) that I have found in one small package of Anuric. In one week the secretion cleared and my bladder was stronger than for years, so that I was not disturbed at night, where I always had to arise several times during the night. I only hope that many will read this and will try Anuric if they suffer with any sort of kidney trouble."—MRS. JACOB LONSBERRY, 85 Albert St.

joy manner, as we are apt to go ahead with our own effects to economize in dressing, the French have achieved a distinct triumph in this string embroidery, states a fashion writer.

Some blouses still show woolen trimming. Knitted collars and cuffs on chiffon blouses for some reason acquired a distinct vogue, and they are still in favor and will be in spite of warmer days to come. They were first seen in expensive imported blouses, but clever women soon saw that they could fashion these cuffs and collars themselves with knitting needles and wool and either make a simple chiffon blouse to attach them to or get a home dressmaker to fashion the blouse for them at considerable saving of cost. And this wool collar and cuff set need not be unpatriotic—it need not use wool that might be used for soldiers—for there is in almost every woman's knitting bag enough dainty wool left over from a sweater with which to make these colorful accessories.

Who ever heard of wooden lavalieres? But if we can wear beads made from sealing wax and feel ourselves as well dressed as though we had emeralds and diamonds, why not jewelry of wood? Some of it is made by wounded French and English soldiers—whose taste in such matters is extremely good—and part of the profit in the sales goes to them. So we are, in a measure, patriotic, besides, undoubtedly, in fashion when we wear these trifles of wooden jewelry.

Work among Sailors, Mrs. Ma- dale; Anti-Narcotic, Mrs. Curry; Re- presentatives to Dominion Convention in Ottawa, Mesdames Gibson, Miller, Parks, Hutton, Vandyke.

In view of the pressing need for social and moral reform a number of resolutions were framed and adopted.

These resolutions were as follows:

That we affirm our uncompromising opposition to the liquor traffic, and do place on record our appreciation of the steps the Government has taken in regard to prohibition, the man- ufacture and importation of intoxicat- ing liquor, and also the prohibition of inter-provincial trade. We beg to suggest that the attitude already taken by the Government will be maintained, both in spirit and the letter of the law; likewise by all those whose duty it may be to en- force it, both at the present time and in the future.

2. In view of the clause of the criminal code allowing a man to live in improper relation with other than his wife, and knowing that this is undermining the happiness of the home, and therefore the nation, we humbly pray that this clause be taken out of the code, making such con- duct to become a crime.

3. In view of the terrible immoral- ity around the training camps, in our country, we implore the Government to place all military camps out of bounds for immoral women. We fur- ther recommend that all mothers do their utmost to safeguard our girls by doing all in their power to keep them from attending military en- campments save attended by a chap- eron.

4. Be it resolved that we affirm our belief in the principle that where a woman is doing the same work as a man, in view of the increased cost of living, she should receive the same rate of pay and that the principle of equal pay for equal work should be rightly maintained.

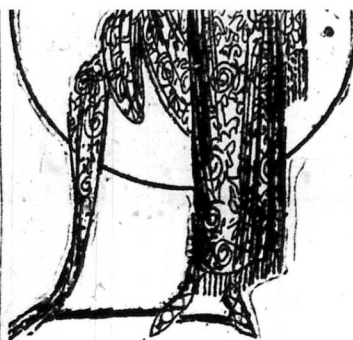

5. Realizing that the freedom now given alien born men in Canada is a serious menace to its well-being; re- solved that this Convention memorial- ize the Federal Government to con- scribe all foreign labor for work in Canada on a war basis, and on the same financial footing.

6. Resolved that this Convention raise their voice in indignation at the Senate ruling out clauses pertaining to ages of consent of girls under 16 years of age. We maintain the age should be the same for females as it is for males, no double standards. We wish to state further that we approve of more of the elements of sex hy- giene and right living being taught to boys and girls of our country, in order that we may secure the fitness necessary for them in times of peace or war.

7. We recommend that the general officers of the W.C.T.U. be requested to appoint a day to be known as "Patriotic Membership Day" on which simultaneously throughout the Do- minion efforts will be made to obtain new members.

8. Realizing that this terrible world war has been started and fostered by Prussian militarism, we deplore the action of our Government in not tak- ing even more drastic measures to intern or safeguard, in some way, every man of alien leanings in Can- ada. This convention desires to place on record its approval of the move by the Federal Government towards restriction of such a free disposition of titles in Canada as has character- ized the past.

TABLE OF FASHION HINTS

Little Things Which Put a Costume in Mode and Aid in Keeping Women Dressed Up-to-Date.

Gray is a favorite shade.
Waistlines are never in the same place.
Sleeveless coats are made with capes.
Yellow is a shade fancied by Paris.
Mushroom sailor hats are with us again.
Ivory white beads make a pretty girdle.
Gray and yellow make a pretty combination.
Small poke-shaped hats are worn.
Satin is used for dresses, suits and hats.
Kilted plaids are much in favor for skirts.

Wool embroideries are more than ever used.
There must be a note of contrast in the dress.
Flag blue is combined with gray and chamolis.
Sashes are tied at one side under the left arm.
The slip-on coat is one that Paris is very fond of.
Wool hop sacking is to be used for motor wraps.
Printed silk voile is used for some of the spring blouses.
Pointed trains are a feature of the new evening gowns.
Drawn-work will be a feature of summer dresses.

WAR TOUCHES IN FASHION

Conservation of Wool Noted in New French Chiffon Blouses; Some Still Show Woollen Trimmings.

Some of the new French chiffon blouses show embroidery with colored string. The idea is to save the wool—we had actually become used to the combination of heavy wool embroi- dery on the flimsiest of chiffon—and instead of going about it with a killelves as well dressed as though we had emeralds and diamonds, why not jewelry of wood? Some of it is made by wounded French and English sol- diers—whose taste in such matters is extremely good—and part of the profit in the sales goes to them. So we are, in a measure, patriotic, besides, un- doubtedly, in fashion when we wear these trifles of wooden jewelry.

DAIRY FACTS

WHAT MAKES YELLOW BUTTER

Real Source and Nature of Natural Color Found by Dairy Department of Missouri College.

Everybody likes yellow milk and but- ter, but sometimes the color is absent. This absence is especially noticeable in butter. Chemists investigated the cause of this variation in color as long ago as 1830, but it remained for the dairy department of the University of Missouri college of agriculture to de- termine the real source and nature of the natural color of dairy products. Three years of investigation not only showed the cause of the natural color but made clear the nature and source of the yellow color that is found in the body fat of cattle. The color in the tallow is exactly the same as that found in butter. Cows that give yellow butter have yellow body fat, while those which give a whiter butter have whiter body fat.

The coloring matter in both cases is carotin, so-called since it was first found in carrots. The yellow color in milk and butter is not made by the animal but comes from the feed. This coloring substance is found in all green leaves, which accounts for the yellow butter in summer. By continued feed- ing of feeds free from coloring matter it was possible, in the experiments con- ducted by the Missouri college of agri- culture, to obtain white butter from a Jersey cow. As a result of the work a list of feeds that will give yellow but- ter and those that will not is available.

ABORTION DOES GREAT HARM

Disease Disappears Automatically Pro- vided No New Susceptible Ani- mals Are Added.

Contagious abortion does much damage in some herds. It has been found that infected cows do not con- tinue to abort. When it first breaks out in the herd a considerable number usually throw their calves. During the second year the abortions will be less, and the third year the cases will be few. In this way the disease dis- appears automatically, provided that no new susceptible animals are added to the herd. Disposing of the cows that have aborted and buying new ones usually results in prolonging the dis- ease in the herd. The contagious abor- tion germs are often spread by the bull, so great care need be exercised in purchasing a sire to make sure that he is free from the contagion and also not to allow him to serve cows that are affected.

John Files, while running a cement mixer on the farm of Mr. Dick Madden on Wednesday afternoon, met with an unfortunate accident by which he lost one of his legs below the knee. He was shifting the belt on the mixer with his foot and caught it in the belt. His leg was torn off just below the knee. He was rushed to Napanee where the leg was dressed by Dr. Vrooman and then taken to Kingston General Hospital.

Charlotte A. Vanalstine, widow of the late Alex. Willis, died on Tuesday in the Kingston General Hospital after several weeks illness. Mrs. Willis has been in poor health for some months. Deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Vanalstine and leaves one son, Reg. Willis, in France, and an adopted daughter, Miss Belle Willis, Toronto. The remains brought to Napanee and the funeral was held in St. Mary Magdalene church on Thursday afternoon.

An Investment Worth Consideration.

The usefulness of the working equipment of the farm may be prolonged, so that twice the years of service may be obtained from them by building an implement shed, to protect them. There is no better investment a farmer can make. A good implement shed may be built for two hundred and fifty dollars. The loss on $1,000.00 worth of machinery,
through exposure is estimated at 20%
or $200.00 per annum. The depreciation through honest wear, when implements are stored is estimated at 10% or $100.00 in the same period. An implement shed costing $250.00 should be useful thirty years. It follows that after thirty years service an implement shed has saved the owner $3000.00 or it is as if the owner of the shed had invested $250.00 at 40% and drew his $100.00 dividend for thirty years. Can you beat this for a good sound investment?

that our meat is of choice quality. The little streaks of fat running through it proves that it came from expertly fed cattle. The better judge you are of meat, the more you'll appreciate the importance of these fat streaks. But no matter how experienced you may be you'll not fail to appreciate its fine quality when it appears on your table.

GOVERNMENT FISH DISTRIBUTION FOR NAPANEE AND VICINITY.

The Municipal Council have appointed Mr. E. R. Todd, on the market square, distributor of government fish for Napanee. Arrangements have been made by which he will be able to handle fish here at the same price at which they are sold in Toronto and Montreal—(White Fish, Herring, Salmon Trout, and Cod at 1 lb.)—thus giving our citizens wholesome fish diet at a most reasonable price. Should it be found that there is a sufficient demand for cheaper grades of fish, such as Haddock, Soles, Skates, Witches, a stock of these will be handled at 10c. a lb. Owing to storm conditions on the lakes for the past week so, supplies of all kinds have not been coming forward, but that will change itself soon and you can have the fish you like best. Fresh supplies will be received two and three times a week. Mr. Todd has splendid facilities for keeping the fish in good condition. Phone him or see him about your supply. Every "fish" meal you eat will save that much beef and pork for the boys at the front, and for the starving people in the home.

NAPANEE TOWN COUNCIL.

For the Glory of the Grand Old Song, the latest and most popular song. Get it at M. PIZZARIELLO, on the Market Square.
